1. Should a girl, when in a restaurant, ever place her gloves and pocket book on the table?
2. Should a girl thank a man for taking her to some place of amusement?
3. Is it discourteous to watch the players' hands at a bridge or card party?
4. Is it obligatory for a girl to give the men she is engaged to an engagement present?
5. Should a woman rise when a clergyman enters the room?
6. Should one ever sound a bell, when dinner is ready?
7. What might be called "the very height" of discourtesy in conversation?
8. Where should high-heeled shoes never be worn?
9. If an automobile party stops for refreshments, should the chauffeur be included?
10. Should the envelope to a letter of introduction be sealed?
11. Who should precede in entering a hotel dining-room, the man or the woman?
12. Should a man, when registering in a hotel, write "Mr. John Smith"?
13. What jewelry should the bride wear during the wedding ceremony?
14. Are men usually invited to a luncheon or a breakfast?
15. Is it necessary to wait until all are served before beginning to eat?
16. In acknowledging an invitation, what is more important than what is said?
17. May a hostess let her guests plan their own entertainment?

Answers

1. No; she should either put them on an empty chair or keep them in her lap.
2. No; but she should tell him that she has had a pleasant time.
3. No; it is not rude to watch a card game in a home where one is a guest, but strangers do not watch a card game if they are well-bred.
4. No, nor is it customary, though there is no impropriety in her doing so if she desires.
5. It is not necessary, but is a nice way to show special deference.
6. No, it is announced by a servant.
7. To break constantly into the speech of other persons.

11. At least one week in advance.
12. The woman.
13. No; if he is alone, he should never write "Mr.," but if he is with his wife, the prefix to their joint names is correct.
14. The necklace or brooch, which is the groom's present to her.
15. Usually the luncheon guests consist of women, but they are invited to a breakfast.
16. No; but wait until the hostess has begun to eat.
17. The manner in which it is said; the acknowledgment should be made in a sincere and cordial manner.
18. Yes, if she knows that they are acquainted and congenial.

Our Weekly Lesson in English
by W. L. Gordon
Words often misused:
Do not say, "His words made me mad." Say, "angry."
Do not say, "My box is fuller than yours." "Full" means having no empty space. Say, "My box contains more than yours."

Do not say, "The seven names and addresses are as follow." Say, "are as follows."
Do not say, "Turn it sideways." "Sidewise" is preferable.
Do not say, "She gave the money to Jane and myself." Say, "to Jane and me."
Do not say, "This story is mighty interesting." Say, "is very interesting."
Words Often Mispronounced
Fatima. Pronounce fat-i-ma, first syllable as "fat," i as in "it," last a as in "ask," and accent first syllable, not the second.
