Sends Out Notices
for Meeting on Gas
Rate Reduction Nov. 7

Notices have been mailed to city officials of 11 north shore municipalities, including Highland Park and Lake Forest, by Mayor L. J. Yeager of Waukegan calling attention to the meeting scheduled for Friday, Nov. 7, at Highland Park, for the discussion of plans in the fight to secure a cut in gas rates.

Deerfield, a community which had not stated its stand on the proposed gas cut during the early proceedings, has indicated to Mayor Yeager that it will also join any move to effect a slash in rates, according to Waukegan papers.

Officials and attorneys of 11 municipalities of the north shore area will be present at the Highland Park meeting. They will hear discussions which it is indicated may carry the case before the Illinois Commerce commission.

Illinois Has Expended
So Far $281,000,000
in Building Hard Roads

"The state already has expended upward of $281,000,000 in building a system of hard roads that now embraces approximately 7,500 miles of the designated bond issue roads," Gov. Louis L. Emmerson stated in a recent review of highway construction. During the present building season, he asserted, 830 miles of pavement will be added to the state bond issue routes, and the counties will complete 175 miles more, making the paved road system 1,005 miles more extensive than it was in 1929. In addition, 140 bridges have been built and about 150 miles of roadway will be graded for future paving work. The governor outlined plans for 1931 that will complete $15,000,000 worth of work that will be carried over from this season, and $30,000,000 worth of new contracts to be awarded.

Trees During Winter
Should Have Proper Care; Some Suggestions

In view of the severity of the past dry summer, shade trees are in a particularly dangerous condition at the present time, say scientists at the Bartlett Tree Research laboratories, Stamford, Connecticut.

During the coming months precautions must be taken to safeguard the health of shade trees, the most important being:

1. Feed now so that trees may have a nutritive reserve.
2. Water now and in the winter, especially evergreens which are particularly susceptible to winter injury, which is frequently caused by a lack of water.
3. Remove and burn during the winter all dead and dying wood. This is particularly important in the case of hickories, oaks and birches, since the trimmings may contain many borers waiting only for warm weather and the opportunity to attack other trees.
4. Plan now to give protection early next spring from the scale insects so injurious to elms, oaks and other trees. A dormant oil spray is advisable in many cases. This is also of value in checking plant lice, spruce gall and red spider.
5. Remember that defoliation by early leaf feeders, such as tent caterpillars, canker worms, leaf rollers and elm leaf beetles weaken the trees and plan to have them sprayed with poison in order to provide the best possible conditions for regaining vigor.

One Week's Record in Road Building in State

State and county road construction, completed during the week ending October 16, totaled 57.48 miles of pavement and 3.63 miles of gravel and macadam, and 14,000 men were directly employed in road work during that period. Governor Louis L. Emmerson is advised in a weekly summary of service underway in the division of highways. Another new world's record for the 1930 season—2,745 lineal feet of eighteen foot pavement, laid October 11 by the Harrison Construction and Engineering Co., on route 173, near Alden, McHenry county, is mentioned in the report.

The move to make America radio conscious has been successful. Now we know quite a few of our citizens who would like to be made radio unconscious.
