

Children's Plays to Be Given in Series at Elm Place; Details

Only three more Saturdays and then the plays start! It is a real watchword with the young people of Highland Park who are eagerly anticipating the first of the series of plays which the literature committee of the Highland Park Woman's club is sponsoring.

The plays have been announced for the afternoons of December 6, January 2, February 7, and March 21. The place will be the Elm Place auditorium, the time 2:30. The ticket sale is going on briskly through the schools, and Mrs. Francis Parker, box 252, Highland Park, is glad to receive orders by mail from the other North Shore towns.

A poster contest is being conducted now in each of the Highland Park schools. There is a season ticket as a prize for the winning drawing in each school, and interest is running high among the children as to which boy or girl will be the lucky one.

The club is very pleased to have secured again the Goodman Theatre players, who will give "Oliver Twist" in January, and the Evanston Children's Theatre company who present the February and March plays, one of which is to be A. A. Milne's "Make Believe." Both of these organizations are nationally known and we feel it a real privilege to have them come to Highland Park. The afternoon of December 6, the first performance on the schedule, will bring excerpts from the opera of "Hansel and Gretel." Mrs. Guy Stuart Bailey and Mrs. John W. Hansel will present their songs and dances in costume and young and old alike are certain to be pleased.

The price for the series ticket is nominal. Once more the committee in charge wants to assure the parents that this is the sort of entertainment parents always seek for their children and so seldom find. It is urged that they show by their purchase of tickets that they are serious in their assurance that the good things will be supported, if the opportunity is given for so doing.

FALL PLAY AT HIGH SCHOOL ON NOV. 21

Drama Class to Present Barry's "The Youngest"; List of Cast; Details

"The Youngest," a three-act play by Phillip Barry, is to be presented as the annual fall play of Deerfield-Shields, Nov. 21, in the school auditorium. The cast have the three acts nearly completed and dress rehearsals will start next week.

"Oh dear, I'm in bits," sighs Nancy, otherwise Emily Watson, the heroine in the fall play, "The Youngest." Can any one imagine a heroine being in bits?—Well, it's this way! Richard Winslow, better known to his classmates as Bill Henderson, is madly, overwhelmingly in love with her, and as most affairs in most plays—they—well that's a secret. The cast and all about its members follows:

The Cast

Emily Watson—a senior in Miss Connelly's home-room. She is social chairman of Garrick and had the part of a society matron in last year's fall play, "The Poor Little Rich Girl."

Helena Goldstein—a sophomore in Miss Lauderdale's session and a councillor. Last year she was named the best actress in the one-act play con-

Over 100 Present at Dinner Friday Night

The Father and Son banquet at the Bethany church last Friday evening drew a record crowd of men and boys. Over 100 sat down to the tables and participated in the good things that had been prepared by the ladies of the church. Hon. J. O. A. Preus spoke in a very interesting manner to the boys and their dads. Mr. Hecksweiler's sextette and the readings added much to the program of the evening.

Mrs. Anna M. Stenson Dies; Funeral Friday

Mrs. Anna M. Stenson, wife of Steiner J. Stenson, died at 3:10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the family home in Highmoor addition to Highland Park. Mrs. Stenson had been an invalid for about 12 years. She was 71 years of age.

The husband and the following children are living: Charles C. Stenson, Maywood; S. Alexander Stenson, Niles Center, and Misses Bertha, Dora J. and Luella Stenson, at home.

Mrs. Stenson was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and a woman held in high esteem by her many friends, whose sympathy is at this time extended to the sorrowing relatives.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 1:30 from the home, and the Eastern Star ritual will be observed at the Acacia Park cemetery, in Chicago, where interment will take place.

"HARD TIMES"

When "hard times" come, the man who has been thrifty and saved money does not have to worry. Preparedness has "saved the day" for him. A small amount saved weekly will soon become a sizeable "margin of safety."
