

WOMEN VOTERS HEAR SCHOOL HEADS TALK

panding communities. Congestion became a serious problem in Elm school.

Coincidentally, the legislature of 1928 passed a temporary law allowing taxing bodies to float bonds up to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, as against the former 2½ per cent. As a result the Green Bay school was built at a cost of $130,000.00. The opening of this building only served as a momentary relief to the Elm school. Last spring the board realized that the school could function as heretofore only if funds were obtained through popular subscriptions. Then representative men were called into consultation. They agreed to raise the necessary money. Four hundred subscribers were secured. They pledged $45,000.00 to be paid within three years,—$10,000 to cover the deficit, $5,000 for a playground director, and new gymnasium facilities. There are at present no resources with which to meet anticipated growth in school population, increase in teaching staff, or new equipment for classrooms.

Mr. Vail, president for many years of school District No. 108 outlined the management of affairs of that organization. Under its jurisdiction are Lincoln, Ravinia, Braeside and Ridge schools, their adjoining grounds and playfields, and a five acre tract on Clavey road. Lincoln school, the speaker stated, has reached saturation point. The other schools will have to be enlarged to meet the rapidly growing school population. While this district is not in arrears, it has no monies available with which to meet the needs of growth. Like District No. 107 it does not face the future with equanimity. Had the proposed tax amendment passed, many of the financial difficulties that perplex boards and parents, would have been automatically solved. Until voters and legislatures alike shall have been prevailed upon to understand that only through tax equalization may we hope for a respite from these eternal financial turmoils, we shall have to continue the unsound practice of mortgaging the future.

The attentive audience seemed to generally concur in the opinions of the speakers.

DEERFIELD TO PLAY L. F. TEAM THURSDAY

A group picture of the Deerfield squad appears on the cover page of this issue of the Press.

It is expected that a large number of Deerfield and Highland Park fans will attend the game in Lake Forest. Thursday, and indications are that the contest will attract a record crowd, as fans in both Lake Forest and Deerfield are expecting a hard battle, but both are confident that their own team will prove the winner.
