

The Highland Park Press

Thursday, December 4, 1930

Price 5 Cents

Bahá'í temple at Sheridan road and Linden avenue, Wilmette, now in process of erection, designed by the late Louis Bourgeois, noted architect, who was a resident of Wilmette until his death last August. The building is said to embrace "the first new idea in architecture since the thirteenth century." Bahá'ism is an all-embracing religious philosophy founded in Persia in 1844.