Outstanding Pictures on Alcyon Program for Ensuing Week; Features

"The Silent Enemy," the great drama of the Ojibway Indians in their wild native haunts in Northern Ontario, is a gripping story of primitive man's battle for existence against the cruel adversities of nature; a thrilling romance of love in the wild spaces of the Indian country. It will show at the Alcyon theatre Saturday.

The story of "The Silent Enemy" is the natural unfolding of a tribal story, told simply and replete with exciting wild animal encounters, the play of human emotions, love, jealousy, hatred and vengeance, all portrayed by a primal people, the Indians themselves.

Defeated time and again in their hunting, with long miles of weary travel against odds that make more civilized folk tremble, they come through in triumph when the great herd of caribou is found. The migration of the caribou is one of the most tremendous scenes ever recorded for the screen. A herd of thousands of horned animals on the rampage in the Barren Lands, with Indian warriors slaying right and left, using the age-old weapon of their ancestors, the bow and arrow.

"A Lady Surrenders"

Seven stars in a single talking picture! Such is the remarkable array of talent assembled by Carl Laemmle Jr., of Universal, for "A Lady Surrenders," the picturization of John Erskine's best-selling novel, "Sincerity," which comes to the Alcyon theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The cast of the production reads like a blue-book of stage and screen. Conrad Nagel, one of the most popular actors of the talking cinema, has the role of the husband whose novelist-wife is bored by married life.

Genevieve Tobin, who went direct to Hollywood from the big Broadway stage success, "Fifty Million Frenchmen" for her screen debut in "A Lady Surrenders," appears as the wife's best friend. Rose Hobart, famous for her many stage roles, among them "Death Takes a Holiday," is seen as the smart, sophisticated novelist-wife.

Basil Rathbone, a famous stage favorite before he came to talking pictures a year or so ago has one of his characteristic roles as a charming Frenchman with whom the wife believes herself in love.

John Barrymore does his most superb characterization as mad Ahab, pursuer of the evil white whale, in "Moby Dick," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production which comes to the Alcyon theatre next Thursday, for an indefinite run. Joan Bennett plays the lead. Lloyd Bacon directs.
