Xmas Day Brings Chevalier to Alcyon

A triple comedy treat has been prepared for moving picture patrons in Maurice Chevalier's "Playboy of Paris," which opens its two-day run at Alcyon theatre, starting Christmas Day. In addition to the joyous singing star of this fast and sparkling laugh and love romance, Eugene Pallette has an important fun-making role, and Stuart Edwin, the dumb Axel of "Sweetie," is in the cast.

Chevalier, Pallette and Erwin are cast as a trio of restaurateurs in "Playboy of Paris." Chevalier is a singing waiter with dreams of becoming a wealthy and heart-breaking man-about-town. Pallette is the round chef. Erwin is Pallette's kitchen boy. They play for laughs in the kitchen, until a surprise legacy sets

Chevalier up in the world, although a twenty-year contract holds him to his job as waiter.

The comedy elements of "Playboy of Paris" are almost as strong on the feminine side as they are on the male. Dorothy Christy, the lively and irrepressible Ziegfeldian beauty who inspired a lot of action in the stage productions of "Good News," "New Moon," and "Follow Thru," is cast as an aspiring gold-digger. Cecil Cunningham, internationally famous comedienne, seen with Ruth Chatterton in "Anybody's Woman," is Chevalier's blond pursuer.

The story of "Playboy of Paris," is set on the boulevards and in the cafes of Paris, where Chevalier aided by his stellar supporting cast, makes light-hearted, lilted love to scores of Parisian beauties. He sings three new song hits, reported to be as hummable and catchy as "Sweeping the Clouds Away," "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me," or "Louise."

Victor McLaglen has been tough and hardboiled in his previous military roles, but in his latest Fox Movietone vehicle, "A Devil with Women," which comes Saturday to the Alcyon theatre, he reveals a new phase of martial life. He portrays an adventure seeking soldier of fortune who sells his services to any country which has a war on its hands. Mona Maris, Humphrey Bogart and Lana Alcaniz portray the leading supporting roles. Irving Cummings directed.
