

Children Enjoy Christmas Party

For the first time since the Highland Park Woman's club have met in their own building, the children of the members were invited to attend a party. On Saturday afternoon before the clock struck three the little guests commenced to arrive. Soon the hall was filled with shouts of joy and laughter, for the daughters of the board of managers and their friends, greeted the children as they arrived and soon had them interested in the old-fashioned games of bean bag, three deep, going to Jerusalem, jump, spin the platter, London bridge, and so forth.

The large stage was decorated with huge balloon trees, red chimney boxes and a tiny stage in the center. Here appeared "Christmas Toys Alive." The cunning Teddy Bear evoked much laughter with his stuttering talk and his dancing legs. The demure little twins in their frocks of yellow sang such a cute little frog song and danced just like real folks. The donkey and his clown trainer created lots of fun with their pranks, music box and clever antics. Then the spooky Jack-in-the-box did his wierd stunt to the awe of the audience. Lastly came Black Topsy with her old time song and shuffle dance. As the clock struck at the close of the "Joy to be Alive" chorus, the toys went to sleep. This was the original puppet show which was presented by Miss Betty Phelps who took all of the character parts, as well as making all the puppets. She was accompanied by Miss Edith Vail at the piano.

Santa Claus, helpers were present to give the little guests candy, toys and balloons at the close of a happy afternoon.
