

D. A. R. Better Films
Committee Review

It is gratifying to note the awakening interest in the community in the part that moving pictures are playing in the life and development of the child. Parents who admit they are not in favor of movies for children, are realizing there is real value for them in good films and concerning themselves with the problems of how to select the best for them to see.

Parent-Teacher organizations are engaging speakers on the subject, the local manager is co-operating to the best of his ability, and this column endeavors to give advance information weekly on current films, to the end that parents may make intelligent selection for their children's entertainment.

Tonight and tomorrow night Harold Lloyd presents "Feet First," a clever, clean farce but we feel obliged to add it is full of dizzy mid-air thrills, and parents of highly excitable, sensitive children better bear this fact in mind. Splendid family entertainment otherwise.

"Big Money," Eddie Quillan, Robert Armstrong and James Gleason head a very good cast and this is a well acted and amusing farce but the fact that a life of crime is made so alluring and attractive, renders it doubtful in its effect on young people. Adults will be amused.

"A Lady's Morals." The author, director and an outstanding cast have made of this romance a picture of special merit. Grace Moore as Jenny Lind, is very appealing, her voice is beautiful, and supported by Reginald Denny who does the best work of his career, produce a splendid picture. It is excellent entertainment for intelligent adults and young people, a little mature for children.

"Just Imagine." This is an amusing and fantastic conception of life in 1980. It is full of novel and fantastic ideas with a rocket trip to Mars for a climax. Family.

The most significant picture of the coming week is "Danger Lights." Here we have the first showing of double width picture in third dimension. Louis Wolheim as Dan, a railroad man, with Robert Armstrong in the role of a tramp, and Jean Arthur, inject a great deal of humor in this tragic story, which emphasizes every day homely virtues. Good family entertainment.

You never hear anybody singing "The Girl I Left Behind Me" nowadays. The reason is that you can't leave the modern girl behind.

"Did ye ever hear of Willie Shakespeare? Well, ye may not be knowin' it, but he was after writin' a play a few hundred years ago that he took straight out of an Irish tale. He patched it up and pieced it out in a strange fashion, but 'tis the same tale for all o' that."

Now we have made another play out of that self same tale, told some years ago by Ruth Sawyer. And if you like this one you are sure to like Shakespeare's.

The actors are members of the Thalian Dramatic club of Northwestern university, the organization that manages the Children's theatre.

Mrs. Charlotte Chorpenning has written this charming comedy; the lines of which are very clever. The costumes and scenery are unusually complete and beautiful. The court dresses make a brilliant picture against the castle walls.

This play will not only meet with the approval of children, but grown-ups will find keen pleasure in attending the performance.

Saturday, Feb. 7 at 2:30 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

Announcement that mail order catalogues next spring will show price reductions of from 20 to 40 per cent ought to get a good laugh out of the free traders who tried to kid us into the belief that the new tariff law would increase the cost of living.
