What People Are Reading Among the New Books

Roosevelt, the Story of a Friendship, 1880-1919, by Owen Wister. Any Rooseveltiana has great appeal to numberless Americans. This book should appeal to even more, for its portraits of the "Tennis Cabinet," and other of Roosevelt's closest friends.

Wister has doubtless judged Roosevelt's opponents too harshly, especially Wilson, and his venturing into the field of the War Guilt is somewhat unwise. Nevertheless the book is of interest in giving so intimate a picture of a great President.

The library's edition is not the one recalled at once by the publishers. Many have guessed, but few know the reason for the recall.—Library Lantern.

Solving Life's Everyday Problems, by J. G. Gilkey. Contents: Getting a perspective on success—finding happiness in an ordinary career—taking second place gracefully—learning to forget—reshaping one's own personality, etc.

Mary Gladstone (Mrs. Drew) Her Diaries and Letters. Throughout her long life, the daughter of the great English statesman was familiar with English political life, and was the intimate friend of many famous Victorians.

Redlakes, by F. B. Young. A long novel much in the style of Love Is Enough. It has the quite charm of an old-fashioned love story and a plot in which coincidence, the triumph of good, and the happy ending are essential parts.

Are You Unemployed?

While waiting for your work to open up, why not employ some of your time profitably by reading:

Books about the job you would like to have.

Good books on any subject that interests you.

The Public Library will set you to work.

If you will let us know the subject that interests you.

Philately

"John Drinkwater," observes Frank Swinnerton in the Chicago Tribune, "has been demonstrating the fact that stamp collecting is not at all a contemptible hobby, as some would have us believe. He has just exhibited his important collection of stamps of the Confederate States of America to members of the Junior Philatelic society, and in so doing this he delivered an address which illuminated the historical importance attaching to the stamps. When stamps can tell so absorbing and romantic a tale as this, the only marvel is that more collectors do not spread their albums across the world. It is well known that King George is an enthusiastic collector; but apart from Mr. Drinkwater I know no author who has realized the importance of such a hobby."

The following books on the subject are to be found at the Highland Park Public Library:

Stories Postage Stamps Tell, by S. L. Rothschild.

Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue, 1931.

Wonderland of Stamps, W. D. Burroughs.

Stamps, An Outline of Philately, by Kent B. Stiles.

Stamp Collecting, Why and How, by Prescott Thorp.

Book and Pets

That six books were included in a recent shipment to the bindery because the family pet had chewed them beyond repair, is a cause for more than reflection. This damage has of course been reimbursed the library, but the book is often a new one and borrowers are denied the use of it for several weeks.

The Borrowers Card

Over 10,000 books were issued for home reading from the Public Library in January. This is nearly double the number of books read three years ago, and means that the assistant at the main desk spends a portion of her time looking up the registration number of each borrower.

To lessen the time necessary to charge a book and to facilitate the work at the desk each borrower is now asked to carry his own card as is customary in most libraries and thus save his time and that of the library assistant.

Washington's Birthday

The library will be open on Monday following Washington's birthday which this year occurs on Sunday.

News from Within

The new building is already attracting visitors. During recent weeks we have entertained Miss Ida Wright, librarian of Evanston; Miss Margery Quigley, librarian of the Montclair, New Jersey, library; Miss Bertha L. Gunterman of the children's book department of Longmans, Green and company, publishers; Miss Winifred M. Bright, children's librarian of Wilmette; Miss Winifred Baum, head assistant of the Civics and Documents department of the Chicago Public Library; and Miss Gladys Allison, librarian of River Forest.

If it appears that someone has forgotten to extinguish the lights in the Old City hall, do not be alarmed. It is doubtless some of the committees from the library board struggling over designs for lighting fixtures, the right color and material for flooring, along with countless other details which are now in the process of evolution, and each considered with the greatest care and skill procurable.

Caslow Is to Speak at Waukegan Next Tuesday

Winfield H. Caslow, known as the "Main Street Crusader," will be the chief speaker at a free mass meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 24, in the Waukegan high school gymnasium, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting is sponsored by the Community Builders of Lake county, with headquarters in Waukegan.

Paddock on Important Legislative Committee

State Senator Ray Paddock of Wauconda has been selected as a member of the special joint house and senate committee which will meet the latter part of this month to pick the best points of three bills now before the legislature and draw up a legislation for drivers' license restrictions, it was announced at Springfield.

Shawnee Country Club to Celebrate Second Anniversary

Five hundred reservations have already been accepted for the cabaret dinner and dance which, next Saturday evening, (Feb. 21) will simultaneously inaugurate the spring season of social activity at Shawnee Country club and celebrate the organization's second anniversary.

Spring colors of pink and green will be carried out in the elaborate mural and floral decorations of the ballroom and dining salon and in the table appointments.

Le Second Anniversaire will be a cabaret affair, since this type of party has proved most generally popular with the members, and will start with dinner at 7:30 o'clock. Tables will be reserved throughout the entire evening and at midnight a buffet supper will be served.

Cope Harvey's original ten piece orchestra as well as another of his units, Farwell's Badgers, have been engaged for the evening.

Roy M. Kirtland, chairman of the entertainment committee, has spared no effort nor expense to procure the best entertainment features available for this affair, the most important on the club's social calendar for the entire year.

Humor for Le Second Anniversaire will be provided by Frank Libuse and Professor Lucifer Butz, two of the highest paid comedians in the country.

Ballet dances will be executed by Alys, petit French toe dancer, while Robert Robinson and his Gypsy Polita will entertain with thrilling dances of quite a different nature.

The very special music for the party will be presented by Myrtle Lansing, prima donna, who has arranged a program of semi-classic songs for the occasion, and by the Wanderers male quartet, a nationally recognized organization of four individual artists whose voices blend naturally and beautifully together.
