Plan Preservation of Desecrated Cemetery

The Northfield Cemetery association met Wednesday afternoon, March 18, at the George Rockenbach home. Relatives of the pioneers buried in the desecrated cemetery at the corner of Sanders and Dundee roads met and conferred with Rev. Arthur J. Byas of Chicago, who is district superintendent of the Evangelical Conference. Rev. Byas assured the people that negotiations are proceeding toward the preservation of the plot and that a monument will be erected with a suitable inscription. Many of the grave stones have disappeared and the exact location of some of the graves is unknown so that one monument is to be erected in memory of all these early settlers. The matter is to be brought before the Illinois Conference of Evangelical churches by the Rev. Byas, at the meeting to be held in April at Barrington.

The centennial celebration of the Evangelical church in Illinois is to be held in 1936 and they are planning to have a part of the celebration at the plot of land which was where the first church of that denomination in Illinois was started. A history of the church is now being written and many of the very first records were found at the Ira Bubert home in Wheeling.

This first Evangelical church was known as the Au Plain Church and articles about the Au Plain cemetery and the razing of the last Au Plain church appeared several weeks ago in the Deerfield Press.

Game Preserve Now on Site of Old Coal Town

A Pennsylvania mountain town which once boasted 2,000 inhabitants, three churches, several doctors and a railroad has become officially a forest home for game, with a population made up entirely of wild creatures.

The site of Barclay, a community which sprang into existence 75 years ago after discovery of coal in the heart of the Bradford County mountains, has been bought by the state as part of 21,439 acres of state game lands for refuge and hunting purposes, the Pennsylvania Game commission has informed the American Game association.

The town, growing out of coal, crumbled into ruins with the disappearance of its mines. Relapsing into forest, the site is now part of a game refuge in the midst of public hunting areas—a retreat furnishing peaceful residence to birds and animals as it once did to people.

Waukegan Firm Given Fox River Bridge Job

The Waukegan Construction company was the successful bidder on the new bridge to be erected across the Fox river at North Aurora, when proposals were considered last week at the Geneva county court house.

The Waukegan company submitted a bid of $72,404.49, more than $3,000 less than the second lowest bidder, the Chicago Construction company of Chicago.

Fourteen of the 23 companies which took out plans and specifications submitted bids. Eleven of the 14 were under the county estimate of $90,000.

THREE WOMEN QUIT SEATS IN CONGRESS

Ruth Hanna McCormick Is One; Others from Kentucky and Arkansas

Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mrs. Pearl Oldfield and Mrs. Katherine Langley have closed their political desks in Washington, thus leaving the field to but six women representatives in Congress.

For two of them, at least, it can be prophesied that they have spoken their exit lines in the strange show that is congress. Mrs. Pearl Oldfield, petite, gentle, intensely feminine, is grateful to the people of Arkansas who elected her to fill the unexpired term of her husband, the late William Oldfield. In her work, she has sought surcease from the grief that his death brought her.

Besides a desire to return to her home and take up the domestic duties that are still important to some women, Mrs. Oldfield has evidenced a dislike for the publicity that women in congress invariably receive. Plans Campaign

Mrs. Langley, who was defeated for re-election to congress in the 10th Kentucky district, played quite a part in political Washington. She was the first woman member of congress to be appointed to the committee on committees, and in this position succeeded Congressman John M. Robinson, who was elected to the Senate. It has been intimated that Mrs. Langley is quietly laying her plans for a re-election campaign. And it is easy to believe that party from her mahogany desk was, for her, a wistful moment.

What will be the political future of the dynamic, vivid, forceful, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick? As Illinois congresswoman-at-large, she was an interesting figure in political Washington. The recent dramatic campaign she waged for senatorial honors against "Ham" Lewis will not be soon forgotten.

Back to Farm

Now Mrs. McCormick says that she plans to go back to her Illinois farm with her two daughters, but no one for a moment can imagine Ruth McCormick content with dull routine. She plans later to devote some time to her newspapers, but no doubt will later make political news as well as editing it.

Abandon Lighting Plan for Court House Square

The proposed installation of an ornamental street lighting system on the streets bordering the court house square was permanently abandoned last week by the Waukegan board of improvements.

Several property owners on the four streets declared in public hearing that present taxes are so high that additional burdens of special assessment for the lights cannot be carried. Several declared the belief that the benefits to be derived from the special lights does not warrant their installation.

The county court house square improvement had been estimated at about $7,000.
