Every mother received a red rose and the oldest mother present, Mrs. Leonard Smith, 89 years old and the widow of a Methodist minister, was presented by the pastor with a beautiful bouquet; Mrs. Smith is the mother of Jesse Lowe Smith, principal of Elm Place school.

Mrs. Robt. S. Black was presented with a similar bouquet for having the largest family present and Mrs. Sarah Laegeler, Mrs. Albert L. Gail, and Mrs. Lawrence Wygal were also given flowers for tieing for next largest families present.

The Sunday school also observed the day with special exercises and mothers attending its session also received red carnations.

Next Sunday the pastor will speak on the fourth commandment, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," or "Do we need the Sabbath in these days?" It is hoped to make these discussions stimulating to Christian thought.
