HOOPESTON, ILL., IS STATE'S MODEL CITY

Mayor and Aldermen Get 25 to 50 Cents a Year; Government Is Good

In Hoopeston, Ill., an enterprising little city of 6000, just far enough down-state from Chicago so it can't hear the machine guns of gangdom, there aren't any problems of official corruption, crime and inefficiency—and good government costs only $2.50 a year!

Being mayor or alterman is considered a civic duty. Municipal officers take pride in giving as good administrations as possible. They work hard and often for long hours to complete their tasks and satisfy the people who elected them that they are ruling wisely and well. And here's what they are paid:

Mayor Emory H. Richcreek, a real estate agent by occupation, gets 50 cents a year.

The eight aldermen, who so ably assist "hizzoner," receive 25 cents annually.

Frame Their Checks

None ever complains that he isn't paid enough. In fact the mayor is so proud of his record he isn't even going to cash his pay checks. He says he will have the first one framed and probably he'll do the same with the second one, which he receives at the end of his two-year term.

Citizens of Hoopeston point with satisfaction to their mayor and aldermen, note that good government has actually been realized and conclude by saying they are getting better government than most places with high-salaried officials.

"It proves you can obtain efficient men for important offices without the lure of a lot of money," they say.

There is not one outstanding debt or bond facing the mayor and his council. Instead there is $30,000 in the treasury and an additional $25,000 has been loaned to citizens. Hoopeston is solvent—with money in the bank.

Many Improvements

It has miles of pavement, owns its own water works and has $15,000 worth of new fire equipment. There are two fine parks, a zoo, a municipal auditorium, swimming pool, a city library and a garbage system—and they're all paid for.

The dozen fine churches have it written in their constitutions that speakeasies shall not be allowed in the city. And there aren't any, citizens claim.

Right now the council is saving the city funds to build a new city hall to replace the old one destroyed by fire several years ago. But there won't be a bond issue. The money must be on hand before the building is started. They operate on a cash basis here in Hoopeston.

Introduced in 1872

The 50 and 25 cent salaries were introduced when the town was incorporated in 1872. The first mayor and his council wanted to work for nothing, but found they had to have a salary to make serving their constituents legally.
