Announcement Made of Fast Freight by Air

In the recent announcement by Transcontinental and Western Air of the first transcontinental air express service with published freight rates, aviation leaders of the country have emphasized another important milestone in the history of their industry. From the time of the ox-drawn freighters the factors of speed and safety have been uppermost in the minds of those building the great transportation systems of America. The air freighter has apparently fulfilled the most ardent hopes of its supporters.

This new type of service definitely places aviation in the fast freight and express field and requires careful attention to those elements that contribute to service in which man-made machinery is involved. According to officials of the Pennzoil company, which lubricates the specially built freighters of the air, the closest scrutiny to lubrication problems is regularly given. This service places Kansas City and New York within one night's traveling distance of each other with deliveries made at Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Indianapolis, and St. Louis.

Explains How Hotel is Named "The Moraine"

F. W. Cushing of Highland Park, has explained how he happens to have (he believes) the only hotel in the United States called "The Moraine." When the hotel was being built many fantastic names were suggested to him and he was embarrassed as to which to choose. One day he prevented the workmen from destroying a great boulder which they found embedded in gravel ten feet below the surface. Knowing something of geology, he recognized by its unmistakable ice markings on both sides, that the stone had been carried to its position by the ice of the glacial period deposited thousands of years ago. Geologists later told him that the stone is of Lake Superior granite and probably had been 100,000 years en route; and that it proved that the highland from Waukegan to Winnetka is an old terminal moraine. That solved the problem of a name for the hotel, and the moraine stone now mounted on a pier near the entrance arouses the interests of naturalists and motorists. Mr. Cushing says that with such a background the name is old enough to be respectable.
