

Game Wardens Will Be Concentrated in Lake County; Enforce Laws

Duck hunters in Lake county, who go hunting this fall a few days before the season opens and just can't stop shooting when they have fifteen ducks, are likely to have to explain matters to a federal judge, Col. H. P. Sheldon, United States game conservation officer, of the biological survey, said.

Lake county, because of its many lakes and with the Fox River to the west which are concentration points for ducks on their southward flight from Canada, has been selected as one of the localities where federal game wardens will center their most determined efforts to enforce the federal migratory bird laws, according to a Washington dispatch to the Waukegan Times.

The drive against law violators, Col. Sheldon predicts, will be the most intensive ever waged by the biological survey, and is necessitated by the combined toll of the drought, civilization spoiling breeding grounds, and shooting, resulting in a threat of extinction for ducks.

Federal game wardens will concern themselves for the greater part with apprehending hunters shooting out of season and exceeding the bag limit, working among the lakes and along the Fox river and the fields where ducks are feeding. Hunters caught by federal wardens will be subject to prosecution in the federal courts, which may either give a jail sentence, a fine, or both to offenders.

President Hoover has shortened the open season on ducks in Illinois to one month, from Nov. 1 to Nov. 30. The bag limit is fifteen ducks a day.

The federal duck hunting regulations are made by the department of agriculture under a treaty with Canada protecting migratory waterfowl.

Field Museum Offers Lecture on Travel and Science This Fall

Nine lectures on travel and science, illustrated with motion pictures and stereopticon slides, will be presented for the general public at Field Museum of Natural History in the institution's fifty-sixth course of this kind which is to open on October 3, it was announced today by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum.

Admission to these lectures is free. They will be given on successive Saturday afternoons in the James Simpson theatre of the museum, and all will begin at 3 o'clock. Eminent explorers and scientists have been engaged for the course.

Following are the dates, subjects and speakers:

Oct. 3—"An African Hunting Trip"—Dr. Thomas S. Arbutnot, of Pittsburgh.

Oct. 10—"Burma"—Louis H. Baker, of Hamilton, Ont.

Oct. 17—"Bryco, Zion and Grand Canyons"—Dr. C. O. Schneider.

Oct. 24—"Pioneering in the Canadian Poaco River Country"—Prof. Charles C. Colby, of the University of Chicago.

Oct. 31—"East of Suez"—H. C. Ostrander, of Yonkers, N. Y.

Nov. 7—"Mexico"—Fred Payne Clatworthy, of Estes Park, Colo.

Nov. 14—"Explorations in the Maya Empire"—Dr. Sylvanus Morley of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, D. C.

Nov. 21—"On the Trail of the Viking"—Capt. Donald B. MacMillan.

Nov. 28—"Camera Shooting in the Southern Marshes"—Alfred M. Bailey, director, Chicago Academy of Sciences.

No tickets are necessary for admission to these lectures, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Ten miles up in the air doubtless will stand as a record until the next presidential campaign opens.—Toledo Blade.
