Riding School Has Reduced Its Rates

Tom Chalmers, of Glencoe riding school, announces that effective immediately new low rates are in effect. Since Mr. Chalmers opened his school about a year ago his idea was to make horseback riding a popular sport within the reach of everyone. With this in mind he realized that the cost must be low enough for all. He now announces that through lower costs he is able to further reduce his rates.

Equestrians have learned to their great satisfaction that the finest horses are available at the Glencoe riding school, including hunters and gaited horses that are not ordinarily available. In fact so great has been the popularity of the school, declared Mr. Chalmers, that just last week he add eight new horses to his string of fine riding stock. Many miles of delightful bridlepaths surround the school and many local equestrians are seen on them daily.

INFANT WELFARE IS CARRYING ON DRIVE

Baby Week Is Period When Interest Is Focused on This Work

During the octave of May 1-8, starting with national child health day by proclamation of President Hoover on May 1, continuing with baby week, and ending with Mother's day on May 8, a nation-wide effort will be made to arouse added interest in the health of America's mother's and children.

In Chicago and its suburbs this annual effort to focus public attention upon the means by which good health may be attained centers around the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago which for 21 years has an outstanding piece of public health work for babies, pre-school children and expectant mothers in the congested district of Chicago.

Local Center Aids

The interest of this community in the work of the Infant Welfare Society is specific as well as general for the season that our people have for years made a vital contribution to the Infant Welfare program thru the efforts of women of Highland Park-Ravinia center. Last year these women raised $2,631 for the support of Alice H. Wood station, furnished volunteer workers for the bi-weekly station conferences and made garments for the babies.

Greater Need

In no period since the first bottle of modified milk was distributed by the Chicago Milk Commission in 1903 has been greater need for the work done by the Infant Welfare society than during this past year—never have the pleas for help been so numerous or so urgent. The Infant Welfare society's twenty-one stations cover those areas in Chicago in which there is the greatest need of saving life. Bad housing and overcrowding are prevalent and the problem of regular earnings is one with which seventy-five to ninety per cent of the families constantly struggle. To thousands of parents the blighted effects of the past two years' insecurity have left only mystification and destitution in their wake.

In these surroundings, with inadequate funds but with a corps of devoted and competent workers, the Infant Welfare society is saving lives, preventing sickness, increasing human happiness and decreasing the need for charity, by providing expert medical supervision for expectant mothers and children in its stations followed by home nursing service to teach the mothers how to keep themselves and their children well. Not only the physical health of Infant Welfare families is cared for but through co-operation with other agencies, the mental and economic distress of families is alleviated also.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational Evangelical church will be held on Thursday, May 12, at the home of Mrs. Emma Meyers, 14 S. First street, at 2:30 p.m.
