Only People as Usual Can Restore Business as Usual

Co-operate with the bank and it will co-operate with you. This co-operation—multiplied a million times by the depositors of America—will do more than anything else to bring back normal prosperity.

With the vast resources of the national government now solidly back of reconstruction, we have a strong foundation for the progress of tomorrow.

When you are your normal self, buying as usual, spending as usual, acting as usual—and when other people do the same—we soon have business as usual in the country at large.

This is an important fact for every one of us to remember. We should help to keep money circulating through the banks of the community. We need more frankness and faith in our day by day dealings with each other.
