

Representatives of Scouting on North Shore in "Kick-Off"

At the conclusion of a short drama, presented Oct. 24, at the fall "Kick-off meeting" of the Boy Scout leaders in the North Shore Area council, at Elm Place school, representatives of the various groups in scouting all pledged themselves to do their part in putting across the Ten Year Program of Growth and Development in the Boy Scouts of America. The challenge of the ten year program is briefly this: to reach at least one of every four twelve-year-old boys with the Boy Scout program and to make the program so attractive that each boy will want to stay four years, to the end that in ten years from now, one quarter of the new male citizens will be four-year Scout-trained men.

The little dramatization began with a short talk by Charles A. Steele, of Glencoe, the chairman of the ten year program in the North Shore Area council. At the conclusion of his talk, explaining the aims and purposes of the program, he challenged the audience of 150 Scout leaders by asking "What are you going to do about it?" A little ten year old "Cub" was the first to come promptly to the platform and explain to Mr. Steele that 9, 10, 11 years old "Cubs" in the council accepted the challenge and wanted to help. Without introduction the following members, each representing a different group of boys or leaders, came in turn to accept the national challenge in behalf of better citizenship for the future.

Woman's Republican Club Reviews Its Program of October

During the month of October the Woman's National Republican club of Highland Park has presented five speakers who might not otherwise have been heard in this city. On Oct. 6, Mrs. Jacob M. Baur, republican national committeewoman, spoke at the home of Mrs. Ross J. Beatty. On Oct. 20, Lew A. Hendee, Louis E. Leverone and A. J. Coyner spoke at Witten Hall. And on Oct. 31 Mrs. James A. Morrison addressed the club at the Highland Park public library.

Mrs. Morrison, who is a well-known speaker on the national republican issue, spoke of the problems the republican administration has had to meet during the past few years and of how the president and his cabinet have tried to solve these problems with constructive measures of relief. She also stressed the fact that one of the most important reasons for having political meetings is to arouse interest and to get the vote out on election day.

The club adopted a constitution and by-laws in view of taking out a charter and effecting a permanent organization. Officers were elected for the coming year. An announcement of future meetings will be made later.

Work is being done in all precincts of Highland Park. If those who cannot get to the polls on Nov. 8th in any way, will telephone Mrs. F. T. Dingle, H. P. 433, a car will be provided.

The High Costs of Schooling

(Editorial Chicago Tribune, Oct. 25, 1932)
Citizens of school district 107 in Highland Park were told that they must increase their taxes or curtail the school activities or salaries. The question went to a special election—should the district levy be increased from $1.50 on the hundred of assessed value to $1.80? — and 768 votes were against it, 551 for it. The cost of schools has been accepted without much complaint by American communities. There has been an over-emphasis on plant and equipment and extension of curriculum—favored by parents and indulged by taxpayers. Villages, towns and cities have sought to acquire merit by the distinctive features of public education and citizens with children in school have been inclined to demand that the public school be everything that is expected of a great private school supported by endowments and high tuition.

The consequences of such expectations, encouraged by school authorities who have found that the pleasure of the parents is the line of least resistance, are that school taxes are nearly everywhere the heaviest single tax burden. If school costs escape retrenchment the necessary reduction in government expenditures cannot be made. This Highland Park school district vote indicates that the supporting citizens require a reasonable readjustment of public education to expectable income, and it is a significant vote.
