Dollar Day Bargains Broadcast in Special Edition

Hundreds of bargains offered by Highland Park in next week's issue of the Highland Park Press as their first semi-annual Dollar Day of 1933. These great bargains are sponsored by the Highland Chamber of Commerce on Friday and Saturday of Feb. 10 and 11.

Next week's issue of the Highland Park Press, announcing bargains offered on the Dollar Days by the local merchants, will go into every home in Highland Park, Ravinia, Highwood, Oakfield, and the country west of the city, so that buyers from all over the trade area may see the values of the Highland Park stores in two days.

Local merchants are making elaborate plans to offer values on the last two days of the week, and lower levels than compared to other years. Expected this month because of low level of retail prices.

Previous Dollar Days have proved that when Park merchants undertake of this character they are successful by giving the best values for the money—values which cannot be passed elsewhere.

The members of the Highland Park Merchants Dollar Day Committee of the Chamber of Commerce are Sam Fell, of Fell's Market; Julian Smith, of Smith's Store; and J. L. Werheing, of B. Garnett Dry Goods Co.

The Dollar Day committee has an extraordinary opportunity for the thrifty buyer. His or her dollar goes further than it has in years. Just now the dollar will buy more than was possible last year before, or several years before that, as prices are at a lower level than for a long time. On top of the prevailing low prices, Dollar Day merchants will cut still deeper, offering never before equalled values.
