DR. A. S. BURDICK DIES LAST WEEK

New York, and they christened him Alfred Stephen.

Taught School
The boy was a keen and eager student, and assimilated the knowledge offered him so rapidly that he was graduated from Alfred University, with a degree of A.B., when only 19 years old; after which he taught school for a year or two.

But he saw before him a career of usefulness to the world and embarked upon it by entering the Chicago Medical College (now part of Northwestern University), and taking his medical degree from Rush Medical College in 1891.

Dr. Burdick entered upon the general practice of medicine immediately after his graduation, in Dunlap, Ill.; then, due to his wife's illness, transferred his activities to Florida for a few years; and returned to Illinois, where he practiced in Hinsdale and Chicago. From 1899 to 1904 he was associate professor of the practice of medicine in the Illinois Medical College.

On his return to Chicago, Dr. Burdick became interested in medical writing, and did so well at it that he was editor of the Medical Standard from 1899 to 1904.

An Independent Journal
It was through this latter activity that he attracted the attention of Dr. W. C. Abbott, who was looking for someone to assist him in spreading a knowledge of exact, active-principle therapeutics among the physicians of the United States.

Dr. Burdick was persuaded, in 1904, to give up medical practice and devote his entire time to editorial and literary work, as editor of this journal, which was then called The Alkaloidal Clinic and was, frankly a periodical for propaganda, but gradually became, under Dr. Burdick's guidance and under its new name, The American Journal of Clinical Medicine (1906), more and more an independent journal for the general practitioner.

But the doctor was also deeply interested in providing physicians with dependable remedies for use in their fight with disease, and made himself familiar with the work which Dr. Abbott was doing in that connection, gradually giving up his editorial labors, which were assumed by Dr. H. J. Achard, in 1913, and devoted practically his entire time to the business of manufacturing pharmaceutical products. With the passing of Dr. Abbott, Dr. Burdick became president of the Abbott Laboratories, in 1921.

In this latter field, the doctor did splendid work and achieved high distinction. He was president of the American Drug Manufacturers' Association 1923-25; a member of the board of governors of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, and vice president in 1923; as well as a member of the Chemical Advisory Committee of the U. S. Department of Commerce from 1925 until his passing; only a few days before his 66th birthday.

Dr. Burdick was a lieutenant colonel in the Medical Reserve corps, U. S. Army; a fellow of the A.M.A.; a member of the American Medical Editors' and Authors' Association, and of various other organizations; and the author of three medical books—The Standard Medical Manual, 1904; The Remedy and Common Emergencies, 1915; and of various articles in the periodical literature.

A Studios Artist
An omnivorous reader, a studios artist he was a member of the Business Men's Art Club) and a wonderful listener, Dr. Burdick accumulated an immense fund of knowledge of men and things, which with his keen vision, sound sense, unflinching kindness, unflinching probity and personal modesty, combined to make him one of the leaders in his field, to whom all listened with respectful attention.

On July 9, 1891, he married Miss Ella Grace Brown of West Hallock, Ill., and entered the general practice of medicine at Dunlap, Ill. Later he moved to Tampa, Fla., for the practice of medicine, and still later returned to Hinsdale, Ill., where he became associate professor of the practice of medicine in the Illinois Medical College, holding this position until 1904. At the same time he was editor of the Medical Standard.

Later he continued as editor of the Abbott publications until his appointment as vice-president and assistant general manager of the Abbott Laboratories in 1916. In 1921 he became president and general manager, which position he held until his death.

Under Dr. Burdick's presidency the Abbott Laboratories made their greatest stride. He distinguished himself as one of the outstanding men in the pharmaceutical and chemical industries of the United States. Due to his high ideals, his foresight and energy the Abbott Laboratories became an important factor in medical research and in the manufacture of synthetic medicinal chemicals. He had devoted much of his time to the betterment of the chemical manufacturing industry through his various activities in association work.

Press All-Stars In Two Victories Over Winnetka Last Week

The Highland Park Press All-Stars Basketball Team journeyed to Winnetka three times last week and were victorious twice.

In the first game, with the Trojans, Herb Englund, a new addition to the team, gave the crowd a thrill when, with ten seconds to go, dropped in the winning basket from the center of the floor. The final score was 25 to 24 for the Press. Bud Gillman was high scorer for the Press while Ruffelt took the same honors for the Trojans.

Saturday night the All-Stars were again victorious, winning this time from the strong Community House Five by the same score, 25-24. The scoring honors in this game were equally divided between H. Englund, Bud Moon and Irv Garling, each scoring 8 points. "Grader" McLaughlin scored the free throw, that proved to be the winning marker.

On Monday night, after a 7-7 tie at half time, the Winnetka Panthers came through and handed the All-Stars their second defeat of the season by a score of 28-20. F. Belmont, a former New Trier high school star, made most of the points for the Panthers, while Rogan, Allens, and Wagner starred for the All-Stars.
