Woman's Club Ends Successful Season Tuesday in Deerfield
Mrs. Walter B. Metcalf presided, Tuesday afternoon, at the season's last meeting of the Deerfield Woman's Club, completing her record of presiding at every meeting of the club during her two years as its first president.
Mrs. Burr Hinrich, the club's re- tiring treasurer, submitted her an- nual report. The philanthropic gifts of the club during the year showed a gratifying total, and evidenced the interest and cooperation shown in community projects: Boy Scouts, $10; Dorcas Home Educational fund, $10; Deerfield Relief Organization, $5; and Park Ridge School for Girls, $2.
Mrs. W. A. Tennermann, submit- ting the report of the auditing com- mittee, complimented Mrs. Hinrich on the neatness and accuracy of her accounts.
Mrs. C. W. Boyle introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs.

George E. Engstrom, who delighted the group with her interesting ex- periences in bird study, and im- pressed them with her complete knowledge of her subject.
Mrs. Engstrom, who has been studying birds in this vicinity for the past ten years, stated that each year she observes more than a hun- dred different birds, right in Deer- field. Some build their nests here, while others merely stop in their migration further north. She told of identifying marks of various birds, as well as their characteris- tics. Of particular interest was her plea not to kill sparrows under the mistaken idea that all are the de- spised "English sparrows." Other sparrows are to be seen in abun- dance of numbers, particularly the "tree sparrow," and most of these birds are of great benefit, as well as great delight with their beautiful song. The grackle and the garling were mentioned as menaces to the more useful and more desirable birds.
Mrs. Engstrom mentioned ways of attracting birds; by planting bushes that produce berries, by scattering such nest-building materials as horse-hair (which is greatly pre- ferred by the orioles), by providing the right kind of bird houses, using care that the dimensions and style are right for the birds desired; by spacing the houses sufficiently far apart to allow the bird families the distances they prefer; and by pro- viding water for them.
The interesting talk was followed by several stories of personal experi- ences, given by Mrs. Engstrom and by members of her audience.
Mr. Jesse W. McGinnis, cashier of the Deerfield State Bank, brought the club a message of community cooperation which was greatly ap- preciated.
On behalf of the club, Mrs. Irving Brand presented a gift to Mrs. Metcalf, a token of appreciation for her untiring service during the past two years. A tea in Mrs. Metcalf's honor, concluded the delightful after- noon.

Send in Tax Schedules Now to Avoid Penalty
Taxpayers in Deerfield Township are being warned to send in their schedules on personal property for their 1933 taxes immediately, as the assessment books are about to be closed.
The schedules must be sent in to Assessor Martin Ringdahl, at 378 Central Avenue, immediately, in or- der to avoid penalty.
