Street Employee Hurt In "Freak" Accident

Ed Brogan, an employe of the Highland Park street department, was painfully injured in a "freak" accident Thursday morning of last week as he was at work on Forest Avenue.

Mr. Brogan and Louis Soefker, another employe, were working with a length of hose, which was stretched across the street. A car drove over the hose, and something hanging under the machine caught the hose, which was held at one end by Mr. Brogan, throwing him into the air. He fell on his shoulder, breaking it in several places. Mr. Soefker's hands were injured, but he did not accompany Mr. Brogan to the Highland Park Hospital for treatment. The latter is recovering there this week.

Storm Causes $30,000 Damage To Power Lines

The severe lightning and rain-storm throughout northern Illinois last Saturday night, the results of which have been seen by many local residents, which reached almost cyclone-like proportions in the western suburbs, caused damage amounting to approximately $30,000 to electric lines and equipment of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, according to estimates made in the Chicago offices of the company this week.

Last Saturday night's storm brought down more than 150 of the company's poles, and one of the giant steel transmission towers was badly damaged when the wind blew the roof of a barn against it. Although this and other damage interrupted electric service in sections of several communities, the company was able to have practically all service restored by Sunday morning. Operating engineers of the company attribute this restoration of service in record time to their system of speedily assembling linemen and repairmen from all parts of the territory served to the trouble areas and to the quick dispatching of materials from the company's several headquarters scattered throughout the area. Several hundred men were on duty throughout the night and all day Sunday doing emergency repair work.

This is the third storm causing heavy damage to Public Service equipment, which has occurred this year, engineering officials stated.

AT THE FAIR

By John Steele

How many of you are having house guests roll all over you, due to our Century of Progress? Have you gone through the feeling of trying to procure for yourself some hot water after the guests have bathed? If you have done this you will pass every test asked of you with a reasonable amount of courage.

The Spanish pavilion will be opened today. It is a reproduction of an old Spanish castle with escutcheons, arches, and artistic windows. The building is colored a rich dark brown and carries a very dignified aspect.

Inside the pavilion there is a museum in which fine paintings and pieces of art work will be on display.

Monday was Jewish day at the Fair. In the afternoon 2500 Jewish boys and girls participated in a field meet held in the Court of Honor. The many people that came for these festivities helped to swell the crowd to gigantic proportions and it was the largest crowd that the Fair has had.

The pageant given by 3,500 Jews, called "The Romance of a People," needs no reviewing after the brilliant write-ups given it by the daily papers. It is sufficient to say here that it was the most wonderful thing of its kind ever produced.

Fair officials say that they expect a much larger daily attendance from now until the close of the Fair. This is because many people are getting their vacations during these weeks, and will spend them at the Fair.

Are you following Gen. Balbo's fleet of Italian sea planes on their flight from Rome to the Fair?

The Hall of Social Science is one of the most interesting of the buildings I think. There are many wonderful exhibits including the education of children, the growth of schools, hope for disarmament, and many book displays.

I think one of the most interesting and novel exhibits in this building is a junk heap. This is no ordinary junk heap, but is a cross-section of ground showing the growth of junk. Moving from left to right it shows prehistoric umbrellas, wires, which they tell me used to be used in corsets, old fashioned home utensils, and old shoes. In the next division there is junk of a more modern day, and so it goes up to the time of radio tubes, and burnt out spark plugs. It may be something to you, but it's all junk to me.

Stepping one door south from the Hall of Social Science you come into the Hall of Communication. This building should be visited by all people who have a scientific mind or think they have. The ones that have, will be overwhelmed with joy while the others will find the truth. Displays by Bell Telephone, Western Union and Postal Telegraph feature this building.

There is a terrible feud going on at the Fair. It's between the rickshaw boys and the chair pushers. The chair pushers claim the "rickshaw boys have been "muscling" in on their racket. Many an elderly old gentleman has been taken for a wild ride by the "rickshaw boys when they stage a little sprint race with their rivals. On the other side only say "rickshaw to you chair pusher and you will immediately proceed at top speed.

Jantzen beach and the Baby Ruth pool are proving to be very popular during the hot weather. Here you may enjoy swimming and also see experts giving exhibitions and racing.

Many of you have wondered what became of the Polish building that was started. It didn't fall into the lake really. When the Polish World's Fair committee ran short of money plans were made to use it as the home of the Friends of Music. When this plan fell through the Fair thought of using it to house the Press, but the latest is that it has been taken over by a German-American group who in a few days will have an exhibit on display.

One of the most interesting things about the Hall of Religion is that the churches and alters seem to be becoming more modernistic. The models of modern churches seem to be departing from the old Gothic style and are showing decided trends for the modern style.

The Time and Fortune building is very popular. Here you may sit for hours reading the best magazines absolutely free. Never go into this building if you have plans for the rest of the day, as you will probably spend hours musing through the magazines here.

Prince Salie has a wonderful collection of precious and semi-precious stones in the general exhibits group. Here is shown jewels from Burma, Ceylon, and India. The collection is valued at nearly a million dollars. The most valuable stone is a cat's-eye which is usually found in the headresses of Maharajahs. Its color is blue grey, and if shown against proper light the jewel seems to fade out and a six pointed star to take its place.

See you at the Fair.

Sports and Exhibits At Century Of Progress by M. Warner Turiff

Horticultural Exhibition "A garden is like a symphony, every flower, every color, a note in its sonorous music."

Members of the numerous garden clubs that flourish in this great metropolis of Highland Park should, if they haven't already, visit the massive and beautiful Horticultural and Floricultural exhibition, located on the south end of the northerly island of a Century of Progress.

This building contains flowers of every description and color. It contains flowers from foreign countries and flowers that probably a great many of you have never seen or heard of before. Two exhibits are found on the grounds and in the building of this illustrious exhibition. One is inside, which is truly a beautiful display of cut flowers, plants and special exhibits. The exterior exhibit is entirely made up of garden displays and garden accessories featured by leading florists and gardeners throughout the country.

The Horticultural and Floricultural exhibit also consists of many floral and garden shows in both the interior and exterior deviations. Space has been provided in the Horticultural Hall where weekly flower shows are held. In order that the exhibits may be changed without interruption and in order that they may be staged in the proper order every convenience and facility has been properly planned. The special exhibits will cover the entire range of flower displays from the earlier shows, featuring Irises and Peonies to the closing period of the Exposition when a special chrysanthemum show will be featured. Each of these will show their own display in their own unique and beautiful way.

Diorama Hall contains an entirely new note in display of scenic settings staged in the diorama form. Glamorous tropical scenes and other alluring bits of natural beauty are found. A special group of these dioramas has been set aside to demonstrate the practical use of flowers in interior decoration.

The gardens will be kept at their best throughout the entire Exposition. Here every form of naturalistic art is obvious and the gardens are of the best. A large terrace overlooking the display is a welcome rendezvous for tired visitors. Seasonable changes will be made so that a perfect picture of perfect gardening will be seen at all times. The beauty of the entire show will leave with you a lasting impression and serve as a real education in gardening and landscaping.
