Ravinia Players

Complete Cast for Original Comedy

After two and a half weeks of rehearsal and some changes in the cast Tom Grant, who is directing the first Ravinia Players' production of this season, has announced the final cast for Guernsey LePelley's original three-act comedy "Second Fiddle."

Joan Keeler, the tempestuous young college girl who has married the wrong man at the wrong time, will be played by Vera Purdy. Joan, who has pleaded for help in shielding the situation from her mother, dislikes that help when it is given and because of her temper frequently comes close to upsetting the plans for that help.

Enid Phillips, the careful layer of these plans is Joan's hostess, Marion Baker. She is a young and modern widow who, although mature and sensible, is somewhat bewildered by the situation. However, she recovers her equanimity sufficiently to plan and carry out the whole plot.

George Lake plays the role of the man in the case, Harold Werple. Harman in the case, Harold Werple. Harman engaged to and in love with a pretty society girl. He, however, faces his situation with dejected cooperation.

The mother who is to be deceived is played by Harriette Golden, who was one of the original members of the Players. Miss Golden has been starring with the Garrick Players of Lake Forest College for the past two years and this will be the first time in that that the Ravinia players audience will have had the opportunity of seeing her act in Highland Park.

Complicating matters more fully in his attempts to help is a butler who is fearful of losing his position because of an humorous misstep he made. Dick MacPherson, who played in the Players productions of Rebound, Ninth Guest and The Whoofenpoof, will act the part of this very earnest but not too intelligent helper.

Other roles will be taken by Agnes Wright, Jane Ashman, Ellen Truax and Donald Vaughan.
