Torrey, assistant district chairman of Wilmette; Paul Musick, Highland Park; Jim Thuring, Harry Stannard, Deerfield; Glencoe, Howard Copp, assistant district commissioner of Highland Park and M. R. Rasmussen, assistant district chairman of the Lake Forest district.

President Roosevelt will preside at a national "Call to Service" to the Boy Scouts of America by radio from the White House on Saturday, Feb. 10, at 11 o'clock, CST. A record of thirteen years of active connection with the Boy Scout organization.

After his war-time service as Assistant Secretary of the Navy had ended, Franklin D. Roosevelt, returned to New York to embark upon a business career. The Boy Scout of Greater New York needed a new and better leader and he went to Mr. Roosevelt. He finally agreed to accept the chairmanship of the Greater New York committee on Scouting organized to reorganize and rehabilitate the organization so that thousands of city boys might have troops and camps and meeting places.

At the end of two years had more than a hundred of New York's prominent business and professional men aligned with him. To make their work more effective they organized as the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York in 1922 with Mr. Roosevelt as its first President. A year has since continued to hold. They paid off $50,000 debts within a year. The foundation then assumed the responsibility of financing Boy Scout work throughout Greater New York.

From the earliest days as head of the foundation, Mr. Roosevelt had a vision that the Scouts of New York City should have a great camping space as their own property. The Scouts had used camping space for years in the Bear Mountain Park. Five years ago the dream became a reality. President Roosevelt gathered about him a large group of men for an intensive campaign. Within a few months they raised a large sum and the vision became an actuality in the purchase of 10,600 acres of woodland in Sullivan County, New York. The Ten Mile River Scout camp, as they are known, with the beautiful lakes and stretches of woodland in the Park of Governor of New York and latterly as the first President of the United States has presented frequent trips. One day last summer, however, while some of the largest boys' camps in the world, President Roosevelt was at his summer home at Hyde Park, N.Y., he expressed a desire to visit the camp. The visit was quickly arranged.

The appointed day was the day of the stormiest days in 1933, but Mr. Roosevelt was driven the 100 miles from his home, across the Hudson River and into the Catskill Mountains to the camp. He was met by a great welcome by the 2,800 Scouts at camp and they in turn were warmly greeted by their President. His words to the boys were: "I had a great time and hope to come back again next year to see all of you."

The Boy Scouts of America announce an increase of 27,226, or a 4 per cent gain in its boy membership as of Dec. 31, 1933. Dr. James E. West, the Chief Scout Executive, stated that the compilation of the registration figures from the 552 councils showed a grand total membership of 904,240 Scouts of America registered with the Boy Scouts of America at the close of the year.

Included in the total figures are 34,065 Cub Scouts, which shows an increase of 22.4 per cent over the registration of the previous year, and 18,326 Sea Scouts, which shows an increase of 23.3 per cent over the preceding year.
