

James Cuffey Given Appointment at the Harvard Observatory

A boyhood ambition to become an astronomer is about to be fulfilled for James Cuffey, 22 year old Northwestern University senior, who has received appointment to the coveted post of assistant-ship to Harlow Shapley, noted director of Harvard University Observatory.

Years ago when his playmates were expressing desires to be policemen and street car motormen, young Cuffey said he wanted to be an astronomer. In high school he built a 12 inch reflecting telescope in order to study the stars. He still uses this instrument in making observations.

Mr. Cuffey, whose home is in Highland Park, will graduate from Northwestern this spring with a long list of scholastic honors. His scholastic achievements have won him the distinction of being the smartest student in this year's senior class.

He maintained an A average during his four years at college for which he was awarded membership in Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity.

He never had to pay any tuition, since his scholastic ability always earned him full tuition scholarships. Upon entering the university he took a competitive examination and received the Nolan scholarship, granting full tuition.

In his senior year he won the much sought Marcy scholarship, granted each year to the outstanding student in science and mathematics. It, too, carried full tuition.

Dr. Oliver Lee, director of Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern, under whom Mr. Cuffey studied, predicts a great future for the young man in his chosen field of astronomy.

Mrs. Allan I. Wolff Dies After Accident Near Concord, Mich.

Mrs. Martha W. Wolff, 53 years old, of 1300 Wade Street, Highland Park, was fatally injured Thursday of last week when an automobile driven by her husband, Allan I. Wolff, president of the National Association of Insurance Agents, hit a gravel truck on a highway near Concord, Mich. Mrs. Wolff died from a fractured skull enroute to the Albion Hospital. Mr. Wolff received minor injuries.

The following tribute to the memory of Mrs. Wolff was written by a friend in Ravinia.

"The death of Mrs. Allan Wolff, who was killed last week in an automobile accident in Michigan, came as a bewildering shock to all of Highland Park."

"As is perhaps inevitable in such cases, the esteem in which she was held has only now been sharpened into a very poignant sense of how significant a role she fills in the community, and of how she served to draw people together with a realization of their common purpose."

"Her work on the board of the Dorcas Home, for example, seemed to grow out of her desire to extend to others that maternal spirit she had brought to such perfection in her home. It was she who thought first of the poor children there when there was any entertainment in Highland Park, and it was her custom to gather up a carload and bring them out."

"Martha Wolff's going is a blow to liberal thought, because with her fine intellect she was able to think through human problems in such a manner as almost entirely to eliminate prejudice. And yet her understanding of those who held opposite views was so complete that she found it impossible ever to condemn them. She would say, 'Perhaps they have not yet grown enough.'"

"This was why her presence on the board of the Highland Park League of Women Voters was so valuable, and why her service as president of Ravinia Woman's Club from 1929-31 helped to make it the forward-looking organization that it is."

"But, more than all this, simply because of her perfectly rounded personality, because she appeared to focus in herself the vision of the good life, to which all mankind aspires and so few attain, her loss seems to upset momentarily the spiritual equilibrium of the whole community."

"To lose such a one is to draw from our hands a part of that commonly-shared, intangible possession which the presence of these rare individuals bestows upon us."

"To lose such a one is to draw from our hands a part of that commonly-shared, intangible possession which the presence of these rare individuals bestows upon us."

Memorial Service For Dumaresq Spencer Held

Last Sunday morning the American Legion made its annual pilgrimage to Trinity Church in honor of the memory of Dumaresq Spencer, for whom the local post was named.

Headed by the Drum and Bugle Corps, members of the post and Auxiliary marched through town with the colors. Arriving at the church they were ushered to a position directly below a cathedral window erected in memory of the departed comrade.

In a clear and concise manner the Rev. Christoph Keller delivered a sermon admonishing the Legion to guard well the Constitution of the United States, and to fight for our country right and wrong, but further than this, to use the strength of the organization to eliminate the possibility of being wrong.

Rev. Keller left no doubt in the minds of his listeners that he is not one of the socialist inclined clergy, and that he would not hesitate to fight for the right.

Magistrates, Justices of the Peace Organize

There is an important movement which, if it materializes, will add very greatly to the method of procedure in all of the police magistrate and justice of the peace courts along the north shore, including Lake County. A meeting for the purpose of organizing was held in Judge Barber's office at Evanston, Tuesday evening, May 15, attended by about twenty-five justices and magistrates.

Courts already represented include Barrington, Morton Grove, Glenview, Wilmette, Evanston, Wheeling, Niles Center, Northbrook, Kenilworth, Palatine, DesPlaines, Park Ridge, Winnetka, Glencoe, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Elmwood Park. Deerfield was represented by W. A. Bickford, the recently elected magistrate for that village.

A committee was appointed for the securing of a location for the next meeting, which will probably be held at DesPlaines or Waukegan. Judge Barber of Evanston is secretary and will make timely announcement for the holding of the next meeting.
