1000 Attend Legion District Convention on Sunday, July 29

More than 1000 members of the American Legion in Lake County, and their families, met in Highland Park, last Sunday as guests of the Evans Watkins Post No. 753, for the annual convention of the Eighth District.

National Commander Edward A. Hayes, who was expected to attend the event, was unable to be in Highland Park, but Paul Armstrong, senior vice-commander of the Illinois department of the Legion, attended in his place and addressed the public meeting in the afternoon at Sunset Park.

Convention business was transacted during the morning at the Masonic Temple in Highland Park, and the Legionnaires and their families adjourned to Sunset Park for a basket picnic.

After the dinner, a parade, which included the drum and bugle corps from Sharvin Post at North Chicago, Highwood Juniors, Highland Park, and Jerry Havelka, the Grays Lake "one man band," as well as drill teams from Lake Forest and Libertyville, moved through the streets of Highland Park, returning to the park for the public meeting.

The business session of the Eighth District American Legion Auxiliary was postponed until Wednesday of this week and was also held in Highland Park.
