Library Notes

Now For Reading Time
This month marks the beginning of a new year of books for boys and girls. The library is eagerly scanning the lists for the best to make ready for the opening of book week.

The manager of the children's room of a library is inevitably a reader of his wares. His constant contact with books and the day by day relationship with boy and girl readers make wide reading of children's books a necessity. But the book committee or librarian who must cover the whole range of adults' and children's interests finds it more difficult to take time to read the books in which children are certain to delight. He knows the old classics from reading and reputation and is inclined to take the new ones on faith, but he could add very happily to his reading pleasures if he could sandwich some of the best children's books among the volumes on his home reading table, for tales of fancy and fairies when well done have an ageless appeal. Would we have wished to leave "Christopher Robin" or "Bambi" wholly to the children, or "Dr. Dolittle" for that matter, or "Hitty," or "Millions of Cats," the pictures of Emma Brook, of Helen Sewell, of the Petershams, or of the Haders?

Books of adventure also bring old and young comfortably together on common ground, just as do the Saturday Evening Post and Boys' Life when swapped by father and son, the boy turning to "Mutiny on the Bounty" and the father to "Triple Threat" or "Shuttle and Sword." Such swapping of reading matter makes close pals of father and son as well as of mother and daughter. Second-hand recommendations are easily detected as such by boys and girls, and if the librarian lacks a sincere feeling for children's books he cannot meet the children on a common ground when he talks books with them in the library or even when he talks with their parents about the books. The perfunctory character of his suggestions is certain to leak through.

Books vs. Merry-Go-Rounds
Books and merry-go-rounds are in friendly competition every day on the Enchanted Island at A Century of Progress in Chicago. One week this summer 2,538 persons visited the Story Cove, an international library for children on the Enchanted Island, sponsored by the Library of International Relations in Chicago, and went away with new ideas regarding books and children. Thirteen hundred of these persons were adults, many of them teachers and librarians looking for new ideas for their own towns and their own work. They watched the children taking time to read in between the more immediately stimulating trips to the mountain, the miniature train and the theater.

The sponsor of the exhibit, the Library of International Relations, is a reference library with the object of supplying correlated material on all international affairs. Forty-six publishers donated their best books to make the Story Cove possible, and the Enchanted Island offers it as a gift to children and as a service to all those interested in children and their education. There are, all told, 1600 books in fifteen languages on the Story Cove shelves. All fifteen languages are read and more are asked for.—P.W.

As the millions of World's Fair visitors saw tires made in the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building, we asked thousands this question: "What do you value most in a tire?" Car owners from every state in the Union were interviewed—drivers of automobiles, trucks, busses—out of it all came one composite answer: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price."

Firestone engineers used every conceivable resource in the development of a tire embodying these qualifications and selling to the public at a price within the reach of every car owner. Answer—the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

COMPARE QUALITY—CONSTRUCTION—PRICE

This new tire is equal or superior to any other first quality tire, regardless of brand—name—or by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale. Call on the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store and examine it. You will be sold on the rugged quality and will want to equip your car with these new tires.

REMEMBER—you save money buying today, as rubber has advanced 442% and cotton 190%, and tire prices cannot remain at these low levels.
