

GARDEN CLASS PLANTS AMERICAN ELM TREE

In keeping with the civic spirit of the garden class of the Highland Park Woman's Club, the organization recently planted a North American Elm on the property of the Chicago & North Western Railway, adjoining the freight depot.

In recent years the garden class has held its annual flower sale on this plot of ground and in appreciation of this privilege this tree was planted. Among the spectators at the planting, in addition to members of the garden class, was the kindergarten of the Elm Place School.

Other contributions of the garden class were the drinking fountain on the grounds of the public library, a tree on the Elm Place School property, and shrubbery around the Woman's Club building.

Local Tracksters Run In Street Car Relays

Deerfield's track men made a good showing Saturday night, I should say Sunday morning, on their way home from the Oak Park relays. The heat of competition was still burning in their veins when they left the Oak Park fieldhouse, but before they reached home the heat had cooled down considerably.

Traveling home on the school bus the fellows began to think of their outcome in the meet. Their loss was a big weight in their hearts, yes not only a weight on their heart but on the rear axle too, for it snapped and one of the wheels went flying away. After much bouncing and jolting, capable Mr. Elker, who was driving the bus, brought it to a safe stop. The boys then showed their mettle. Transferring from one street car and sprinting to the next was right in their line, and before the morning was well away from its marks, the boys ran four such sprints with Coach "Deac" Wolters setting the pace.

After a long ride from Irving Park boulevard the team arrived on Howard Street in Evanston. They thought it possible to make the 1230 car, so led by "Deac," who used his football experience in the theatre crowd, they ran for the station. On arriving there the boys found out that the car had already gone. Charmed, they looked around for something to lose their wrath on, but on second thought they remembered that they were tired. The next hour was spent reading discarded newspapers, and trying to gather enough money for the car fare. The car pulled in and the team went aboard. The rest of the journey home proved to be uneventful, until Highland Park was reached, and the boys went into the home stretch at 2:30 a.m., winning by forty winks and a snore.

Marionettes Play For Standard Oil

Internationally famous entertainment fresh from featuring two leading New York night club programs during the past year—Sue Hastings' Marionettes, also secured by Mrs. Roosevelt for a White House birthday party to one of her grandchildren last spring—will open Monday morning, March 25, under the sponsorship of Standard Oil company at the Chicago Better Home exhibit in the Straus building.

Scheduled for two fifteen minute free shows hourly for each day of the two months duration of the exhibit, the Marionettes' attractive and colorful programs, featuring Long-standing vaudeville headliners, they were engaged for twenty and fourteen weeks periods at the Merry-Go-Round and Zelli's respectively, sophisticated New York night life rendezvous, yet for the past four years they were given special engagements by the New York Theater guild as being the best children's entertainment in America.

Each fifteen minute performance contains four skits: "The Opera Singer," featuring Madame Chirissa Cadenza and Oliver Obligato, her accompanist. In a fantastic bit of foolery: "A Bicycle Built for Two," a quaint recapture of the gay nineties by portrait marionettes of Joe E. Brown and Zazu Pitts; "Barnacle Bill the Sailor and His Sweetheart Melissa;" and "Hallelujah." Puppets cleverly manipulate handfuls of strings sending the puppets through their whimsical antics, which are accompanied by electrically transcribed dialogues, sound effects, and music.

The marionette troupe has been booked for a European tour following termination of their engagement with Standard Oil at the close of the Better Home exhibit, including the larger theatres in England, Scotland, and on the Continent.

Deerfield Club to Hear Political Talk

Mrs. Walter Metcalf, chairman of the home and education department, is arranging the meeting.

Deerfield P. T. A. Has Fine Party

The spacious beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gauntlett of Deerfield Road was opened to the Deerfield P. T. A. for a benefit card party last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Ward Gauntlett was chairman and arranged the lovely party.

There were twenty-five tables of cards and prizes for each table. In addition to these prizes were many donated by merchants and business concerns. The etching made by Chester Danforth was given to Mrs. J. E. Snobble of Highland Park. The entire list of prizes would be too lengthy for publication.

A goodly sum was realized and will be used for the grammar school.

Consumer's Corner

Eternal vigilance is the price of consumer protection! Slipped into the Agricultural Appropriation Bill is an innocuous appearing, but potentially dangerous "rider" which would nullify much of the effectiveness of the work of such consumer agencies as the Bureau of Home Economics. This appropriation bill with the rider in it has passed the House and is awaiting consideration in the appropriations committee of the Senate. The rider provides that no part of the appropriation of the Department of Agriculture shall go to any officer or employee who makes public a statement which advocates reduced consumption of any wholesome agricultural food commodity or manufacture thereof or declares that any such product is harmful or undesirable. Adulterated or misbranded articles are excepted and after debate in the House an amendment allowing balanced diets to be published was added.

The story behind the proposal is the objection of wheat and milling interests to two pamphlets published by the Bureau of Home Economics for the Federal Relief Administration to help recipients of relief and people with restricted incomes to get the most nourishment for their money. These pamphlets were entitled "Diets at Four Levels of Nutritive Content and Cost" and "Food Budgets for Nutrition and Production Programs." The liberal diets for the two higher income levels prescribed less consumption of wheat and this is what aroused the ire of wheat growers and millers, even though the diets for the two lower income levels, comprising 75 per cent of the population, prescribed greater wheat consumption than at present.

The question raised by the rider is whether scientific institutions are to be allowed to make available to the public, information which they have secured through scientific research or whether the channels of truth are to be closed to the consumer by legislative enactment.

If the rider goes through it would mean a precedent for the control of government research by private interest.—Lake County Consumers Council.

1. The Lawn, base of all landscape beauty.
2. Evergreens, for year round landscape effect.
3. Rock, proper accent and arrangement of boulders.
4. Pool, where water effect is necessary or desired.
5. Rock Garden, where added interest should be incorporated.
6. Style and Design in Landscape Art.
7. Soil requirements as to texture and food needed.
8. Acidity or sweetness of soil as plants demand.
9. Aeration and mulch where they are needed.
10. Tools - hook, small hoe, etc., for proper cultivation.
11. Trees, Shrubs, and Hedges.
12. Bulbs, Perennials, Phlox, Annuals, etc.

You are interested in securing the greatest value for your investment.

We meet the keenest of competition.

Our ability to anticipate the public needs governs our success.

Styles change; your home grounds may require some added clump of evergreens, a pool, an added perennial and bulb border, a few boulders, or a rock garden, or elimination of barren spots in the lawn by new seeding, etc.

Our close touch with the propagation and growing of nursery stock gives us an added knowledge few landscape men can secure.

To illustrate: seeds of some plants are acid loving, while others will not germinate or grow in an acid soil at all. While some plants demand an acid soil, others die in it.

Our customers receive more value by way of information many times than their planting cost. Yet we charge them nothing. Your responsibility in securing the services of an expert is to get a man who knows.

QUESTION: Can the value of your home be enhanced and added prestige with your friends and business associates be gained by taking advantage of the many hidden assets to be recovered by efficient design and development?

Rock bottom depression prices are available now.

Our years of continuous study and experience is at your command.
