Archery Exhibit
A glorious splash of color there, the target stands. To the bowman's eye it flings its challenge along the air, Daring his skill—and his heart beats high.

This "glorious splash of color," the target, may now be seen as a part of the interesting exhibit on archery at the public library. Archery is one of the most interesting of modern sports. It is an old sport, with a rich heritage of history and tradition. The bow-and-arrow was used by ancient peoples as a weapon of protection or aid in securing food. Today it serves as an implement for a fascinating sport. This change in archery may be seen in the exhibit in the form of the old African bows and arrows made available for the exhibit through the courtesy of Mr. W. H. Holgate. The modern split bamboo bows and the colorful arrows were secured through the courtesy of Mr. T. H. Morris and his brother, Mr. S. D. Morris.

The old archery books, "The Archers' Register of 1877 through 1880," were gifts to the library by Miss Priscilla Carver.

The public library has also many up-to-date books on this subject—books dealing with the history of archery and books dealing with the technical make-up of the bow and arrow and the technique of shooting.

Our Government Daily

Readers who are interested in following current governmental proceedings will find an interesting and helpful guide, the "Congressional Record," which is being sent daily to the public library which Congress is in session.

The Congressional newspaper contains in full the President's messages to Congress, the speeches and debates of the various members of Congress and the record of their votes on the different legislative questions in issue. Also the history of a bill can be traced in the "Congressional Record," from its introduction into the Senate or House through the action taken, in the form of reports, speeches and debates to the final voting, when it becomes a law is passed.

The United States News, the weekly newspaper of national affairs printed in Washington, is also a great help in following national trends.

The purpose of the United States News is to present a comprehensive review and analysis of the activities of the government of the United States in all its branches—Legislative, Executive and Judicial—and of the governments of the forty-eight states.

The material is authoritative and very thoroughly and interestingly presented. One page is devoted to "Who's Who in the Government"; another page "To Promote the General Welfare"; a third is entitled

"The Congress Week"; and another "The State of the Union Today."

The library heartily recommends this newspaper for those who wish to be accurately and well informed as to current national activities.

Living Biographies

On April 18, Clarence Darrow celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday. To those of us old enough to remember some of the great trials in which he participated—the Debs case, that of Bill Haywood, the brothers McNamara and the bombing of the Los Angeles Times; the Loeb-Leopold tragedy, the Scopes affair at Dayton, and all the rest—it cannot seem that Clarence Darrow is that old. At the close of his autobiography published three seasons ago, "The Story of My Life," he wrote that he was slowing, that "the big arm-chair in the library lures me." Yet it seems only yesterday he led a life of great activity. Our day has known only one Clarence Darrow; anyone who has missed reading his book has missed a rare experience. The book is available at the public library.

Another anniversary, of a somewhat different nature, occurred on April 14. On that date there was a golden jubilee celebration in the New York Metropolitan Opera House, marking the completion of Walter Damrosch's fifty years as a conductor. To Doctor Damrosch's many admirers—many among his radio audience—the public library recommends "My Musical Life." His recollections from childhood in Germany through the years until he became one of the best-known figures in the musical world, reveals a fascinating life story, in the telling of which he gives the readers many an inside view of the world of music.

THE ANSWER IS SIMPLE... EVERYBODY

At least everybody in the Jones family does. They range from Teen-Age Tom, who's keen on the For Sale columns (and knows how to interest Dad), to Grandma, who keeps the whole family posted on the personals. In between them, the others have rented apartments, bought a piano, sold old clothes, brought home some mighty nice pets, and saved money. It's the modern way . . . and the economical way . . . to keep up with the Joneses!

Nearly Fifty Girls in Cast of "Jack and the Beanstalk"

Between forty and fifty girls from Highland Park, Ravinia, Deerfield and Glencoe will be in the cast of "Jack and the Beanstalk," the dance program to be given Friday, May 17, and Saturday, May 18, in the Ravinia auditorium by the pupils of Mildred Haessler.

The Friday afternoon performance will be at four and the Saturday evening program at eight-thirty. Rural English costumes of the 15th century have been made from designs by Hazel Crow Ewell of Ravinia. The magical beanstalk, up which Jack climbs to find the bloodthirsty giant, and other scenic and lighting effects will be in charge of Howard Copp of the Ravinia school. Musical accompaniment will be played by Mrs. Lillian Cabonargi and

Mrs. Mildred Fransen of Highland Park. The Haessler dancers have given eight previous annual programs, some of which were repeated at children's afternoon entertainments at Ravinia Park when summer opera was still conducted there.
