ALWAYS WITH US

Probably every community has one . . . the business man who considers certain tactics "smart business" when used by him, but "unfair competition" when used against him.

In the recent era of ephemeral and fast dying slang, many terms have been coined to describe him and his kind. Probably the most graphic is "bellyacher."

"Mary Rose" Opening a Great Success

Ben Guy Phillips sent his cast for "Mary Rose," by Sir James Barrie, off to a flying start on Monday night at the Central School Auditorium in Glencoe when he opened the summer season of the North Shore Drama Festival. The auditorium was filled with a very enthusiastic first night audience in full dress regalia, and the play moved smoothly from start to finish. It is a mystic, spiritual type of play, full of mystery and the unknown.

Edith Barrett, as Mary Rose gave to her part all the whimsicality and spirituality that Barrie has created in this creature half of this world and half of a mystic world of the supernatural. The part is a difficult one, but Miss Barrett gives it the full interpretation of Barrie's tender, sentimental touch. Eric Dressler plays the dual role of Simon, the lover and husband of Mary Rose, and Harry, her son who returns to release the soul of Mary Rose from its bondage on earth. He deals tenderly and understandingly with both roles, and appears almost continuously on the stage carrying the play thru from beginning to end as an unusually able co-star with Miss Barrett.

The supporting cast is extremely fine and thoroughly professional. Edgar Kent does a very beautiful piece of work as the father of Mary Rose, and Alice John is a charming and understanding mother. J. W. Austin plays the part of Cameron, an educated Highland boatman, one of Barrie's most delightful bits of character-study. Brina Ravel plays the frightened but staunch housekeeper, and A. Frothingham Lyons adds the comedy part of the Rev. George Amy.

"Mary Rose" will run through this week and next, closing on the sixth of July so that Mr. Phillips may begin work on his next production, "The Crime at Blossoms," by Mordant Shairp will be the second play of the season, beginning on July 12, and starring Jessie Royce Landis and Ernest Gledening. The third play of the series will be Andre Obey's "Noah," with Burgess Meredith as star, and will open on July 31. The last play of the summer will be the world premier of "Prospect Avenue," by Ashton Stevens, starring Tom Powers, Rosemary Ames and Katherine Brug. This will open on August 19 and will run for two weeks, also, closing the season for the North Shore Drama Festival.

Tickets may be purchased from the box-office in Glencoe at the Central School, and subscriptions may be had from the Rector's Guild of Trinity Church by calling Mrs. W. L. Winters, Highland Park 2760.

N. S. Art League To Meet Saturday

Rain and the beauty of the garden have caused the North Shore Art League to elect to return to the Shakespeare Gardens of Northwestern University in Evanston next Saturday for the weekly sketch class. Last Saturday a number came out to sketch in spite of the dampness, but it was decided that the best results could be obtained by a trial on a day which, please Jupiter Pluvius, will be dryer!

Anyone interested in sketching is invited to these weekly sketching parties. In addition, the summer art classes will also be open to the public on payment of the standard fees. At present the sculpture class, under Nancy Coonsman Hahn, is meeting Mondays and Wednesdays in the Art League studio, Community House, Winnetka, at 9 a.m.

Fourth Meeting of Mid-West Institute Now in Progress

notice a panel discussion was arranged by Raymond Wilson in cooperation with the Evanston League of Women Voters. The subject was "Viewing the Possibilities of War in Europe, Asia and America." Those who participated were, Sidney B. Fay, professor of history of Harvard; Geo. A. Blakeslee, professor of history at Clark University; Dr. Bertrand Picard, Englishman, expert adviser at Geneva; and Dr. Colegrove, professor of political science, Northwestern University.

James Weldon Johnson, professor of creative literature, Fisk University, on Friday night will lecture on "The Art of Being Civilized." Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Evanston, will preside at this meeting. Sunday morning at 11, Dr. Tittle will deliver "The Institute Sermon."

At the First Baptist Church, Evanston, Sunday evening, June 30, Professor D. Elton Trueblood, associate in philosophy at Haverford College, will speak on "Alternatives to Violence."

Next week will be ushered in for the Mid-West Institute lecture series by Carroll Binder, assistant editor Chicago Daily News, whose subject will be "Reporting the Foreign News of American Newspapers." Mr. Binder is eminently qualified to consider this important matter, particularly vital in American democracy. For a number of years he was stationed in the principal capitals of Europe. More recently he spent several months in intensive travel and study in Japan and Manchuria.

Wednesday evening the speaker will be Senator William H. Dieterich, United States Senator from Illinois, who will speak on "The Treaty Making Power of the U. S. Senate." Mr. Dieterich was one of the forward-looking members of the senate who voted for the U. S. entry into the World Court.

On Friday, July 5, the final night of the series, Harold G. Moulton, president, the Brookings Institute, Washington, D. C., will discuss "Isolation or Co-operation." All people who view the international situation objectively are urged to hear this authoritative discussion.

An informal reception on Thursday evening, June 27 will be tendered in honor of the faculty and friends of the Institute by the Mid-West Institute of International Relations assisted by the Evanston School of Foreign Affairs, at Harris Hall, Northwestern University. The decorations in charge of Mrs. Herbert Philbrick, will be entirely in white to convey the idea of "peace." Flags of every nation and national flowers in characteristic containers will be used. Many local people have been invited.

Mrs. I. M. Greenberg is entertaining a party of young people at dinner next Tuesday evening, later escorting them to the play, "The Insect Comedy," at Northwestern University Theater.

Villa Moderne Adds Two New Attractions

The management of Villa Moderne is presenting two distinguished artists in Hal Young (poet of song) and Huston Ray (wizard of the key board). Mr. Young was featured in numerous Broadway productions including the Student Prince, New Moon, Naughty Marietta, and was recently at the Empire Room of the Palmer House. Mr. Ray is well known for his appearances on NBC and CBS radio chains and is also known as a headline vaudeville and concert artist. He is rated among the first five outstanding pianists of the world.

In addition to this team, Mr. Hutchins is presenting the six Cosmopolites, headed by Ken Fiske, who play dinner music and rhythmic music every night at the Villa. It has been necessary to enlarge the outdoor dance platform to twice its original size owing to the increased patronage of the public.
