BANK DEPOSIT INSURANCE

Washington, D. C., June 23—Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, said today there was "no occasion for an impression (bank) insurance coverage is to cease."

"Federal deposit insurance is not expiring on July 1," Crowley explained, "but under existing law would undergo a transition from a temporary to a permanent form for all eligible banks now covered by the insurance of deposits or for those not now covered which apply and qualify.

"Depositors in banks as well as bankers should clearly understand that deposit insurance is not expiring, but continuing either under the plan provided by existing law or under such modification or extension as Congress may determine."
