A Worthwhile Enterprise

With over one thousand already enrolled, the Highland Park East Park Board recreation playground, under the supervision of E. J. Brown, superintendent of parks, and directed by R. J. Cox, director of playgrounds, is well along in another season of activity.
 The board maintains four playgrounds, each with a competent instructor, and two beaches, both of which have lifeguards. The four parks are Sunset, Lincoln, Ravinia and Port Clinton, the beaches, Central and Lincoln.
 The programs, which stress baseball and swimming instruction, are designed to afford recreation for both children and adults, and to keep boys and girls off the streets and busy at some profitable activity. Emphasis is laid on character building and the development of sportsmanship. R. J. Cox, states that each year 150 to 200 children learn to swim under the instruction offered in these programs.
 Highland Parkers may well be proud of this opportunity offered to their children. It is a community project ranking in importance with our schools, library, and other public institutions which are of a type to attract home seekers to Highland Park as an ideal place to live.

Stupey-Smith Post Plans Big Carnival

Stupey-Smith Post of Highwood is planning one of the largest affairs it has ever attempted in this year's carnival, according to "Merely Adjutant" Paul Blum, and the event will last four days.
 The carnival will start with a parade on the Thursday evening, Aug. 1 and winds up at the carnival grounds on Waukegan avenue, just south of Highwood avenue. One of the outstanding features of the parade will be the "parade of pets," and a prize will be awarded to the handsomest pet, the best trained pet, and the homeliest pet. Only children will be allowed to enter pets in this parade and they must prove ownership of their particular pet for over a period of at least a year. Anything in the pet line can be entered, from a field mouse to an elephant, says Blum.
 Tentative plans also call for a bathing beauty parade, as well as a style show. But the feature of the style show is that will display only the styles prevalent in the Gay Nineties and not of today.

Many new rides have been planned for the carnival. And there will be music by one of the best north shore orchestras for the dancers. Other musical concerts and free vaudeville acts will be given nightly.
 One night will be set aside as "A Night in Italy," when all workers will be dressed in Italian costumes, all prizes will carry out the idea, and there will be Italian folk singing en masse, to transport the listeners to a miniature Italy. The Italian organization of Highwood has assured Blum of their full cooperation to make this a "night of nights."

Instead of a popularity contest this year, the post decided to award a prize to the person who has done the most outstanding bit of Americanism work in their community—the contest being open to "any citizen of legal age," according to Blum.
 Proceeds of the carnival will be used by the Highwood post for its welfare work throughout the year. A certain portion is, however, set aside for a Legion Memorial Home Building Fund.
 The famous Junior Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, under the direction of Ben Stiegler, will conduct a registration booth. The Sons of the

FOREST TRAILS

QUETICO FOREST RESERVE in the far southwestern corner of Ontario along the International Boundary is one of the most beautiful and unspoiled regions in Canada. The canoe trip outlined here is 347 miles long, is wholly within the park area, and is perfect for the canoeist who is inexperienced or who is taking his family with him. It is free from dangerous fast water and the short portages are kept open and in good condition by the rangers who constantly patrol the park. No timber has ever been cut on Hunter Island, and game, such as moose, deer and bear, are so strictly preserved that they have lost much of their natural fear of man and make perfect subjects for photographs. Carrying of firearms within the park is prohibited but licenses to fish may be obtained for musky, bass, lake trout, pickerel and Great Northern Pike that abound in the area. All along the route cabins and shelters are available for the use of canoeists. The trip commences at Fort Frances, one of the gateways between Canada and the United States and it returns to the same point. Motor roads link Fort Frances with the main highways of the United States. Inset is a sketch map showing the motor route from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Fort Frances and a picture of a Quetico Park guide.

American Legion, under guidance of Harvey Reber, will operate a cor-no game.

Paul A. Blum, is chairman of the carnival committee for Stupey-Smith Post, and has assisting him, James Patrick Hickey as secretary, and Patrick Hannan as treasurer, as well as a large group of the post's members.
