Many future dog owners shrink from the idea of buying a young, or even a partly grown dog, and while the matter is in the end entirely up to the one who is purchasing the animal, the person who is finally to become the owner and master, still the acquisition of a grown dog presents both advantages and disadvantages, which will be briefly discussed.

The dispositions of the various dogs within a certain breed, as well as in the different breeds, vary considerably, and this must be carefully considered when making the purchase of a grown dog, for it must be remembered that after the maturity of a dog is reached, adjustments to new conditions and friends are not so easily made as in the puppy and growing stages. Of course, there are exceptions to every rule, and some dogs will make friends immediately, regardless of breed, while others will not, always remaining the so-called "one man dog." Chows and German Shepherds usually are good examples of this, the trait being a throwback from their ancestral environment, the Shepherds, now commonly called "German police" dogs, being former inhabitants of Caesar's Gaul, while the Chows are primarily an oriental breed. On the other hand, such breeds as the Terriers, Scotch, Irish, Airedale, Wire, Fox, Smooth Fox, and the like, take changes in ownership more philosophically, and consequently are much more easily handled.

When the dog is first received into the family, a great deal of tact must be used, especially with some dogs who might be inclined to be ugly. However, if enough time is allowed for the adjustments to strange surroundings to be made, the affair usually straightens out itself. One of the most essential things in this respect is to gain the complete, full confidence of the animal as soon as possible after meeting him. A reserved dog should be left alone at first, as a measure of respect. In a short while he will discover that the owner is a friend, upon whom he can depend.

If he is unwilling to make friends at the beginning, the thing to do is to make him as comfortable as possible in a place from which he cannot escape, leave him a light meal and some water, then leave him alone to think matters out for himself. He should be visited occasionally and spoken to in an ordinary, conversational, pleasant tone of voice. Interested neighbors and friends should be discouraged from pestering him during this time, as he will become confused if he has too many people to remember, thus prolonging the process of making friends.

After the dog has made his first advances to his master, and the two begin to understand each other, he may be exercised and taken for walks out of doors on a leash, in order to acquaint him with the neighborhood, and in a short while new friends may be brought in and introduced. From this it is but a short step to complete confidence and happiness on the part of the dog.

If the dog is purchased after he has reached his maturity, it is more than likely that he has passed through most of the diseases associated with puppyhood and that he has developed a stage of comparative immunity. Also, his habits of cleanliness should be well established by this time, though this is not always the case. However, training other than that which he has undergone already must be carried on very carefully, and it is oftentimes difficult for a new master to carry it beyond the point at which his first training stopped, and when this is accomplished, it involves a very intensive study of the nature and character of the animal.

Lake County Seal Sales Total $4,500

Booth sales of T. B. Christmas Seals in Waukegan and Highland Park netted the Association $45.81, Miss Mary Kendall, executive secretary, announced today.

The student nurses of St. Therese Hospital had charge of the booth in Waukegan, selling the seals in the First National Bank for three days and then moving to the post office where the sale continued for the remainder of the week. The total return from Waukegan was $21.81.

Mrs. Rodney B. Swift of Highland Park, a board member of the association sent in $24 from the sale of seals in Highland Park.

Not quite half of the 13,000 letters which were sent out by the association at Thanksgiving time have been heard from. The seal sale goal for 1935 is $8,000. The return today stands at $4,526.76, slightly more than half of the needed amount.

The association feels that those who have kept the seals until Christmas time did so because they intended to make a contribution to the tuberculosis work in Lake County. Figuring a return of 50 cents per letter, the remaining letters should add approximately $3,000 to the present total. The association is preparing to send out follow-up cards to all who have not paid for the seals and urges everyone to send in his contribution at once in order to save the association the cost of postage in tracing the donations.

Report from the State Tuberculosis Association this week shows the Lake County branch fourth in standing among the counties in Illinois in seal sale returns as of Dec. 14.

DuPage is in the lead with $3,121.27, Winnebago second with $3,098.54 (representing an increase of $633.67 as of the same date last year), Peoria had $3,061.98 on deposit and Lake County $3,005.58.

The total today for Lake County is $4,526.76 which is slightly behind the total last year on this date. However, only half of the letters have been heard from so the association is hopeful of realizing its goal of $8,000 before the sale is closed.

It is never too late to pay for Christmas seals. The tuberculosis work goes on throughout the entire year and the money is greatly needed. Paying for your seals now means the association will be saved the cost of postage for letters sent to trace contributions. Send in your contribution now!

Quoting from the Statistical Review of Recent Mortality and Morbidity Trends, published by the State Department of Public Health, is the following:

"Case reports of tuberculosis in 1934 were up about 6 per cent above those for 1933, while the 1935 reported incidence stands about 3 per cent above 1934. Sputum specimens submitted for examination in 1934 were up nearly 12 per cent above 1933 with another increase in 1935. This indicates an increase in the prevalence of tuberculosis. The death rate for 1935 for the State of Illinois is 52.4 deaths from tuberculosis per 100,000 people."

FHA Insures Loans Totaling $7,972,321

The Federal Housing Administration in its first full year of activity in the northern Illinois district, has insured a total of 799 loans amounting to $4,283,035 under the mutual mortgage insurance provisions known as Title II of the National Housing Act, and 3,009 loans totaling $7,972,321 under the modernization credit plan known as Title I. Of the 799 Title II loans, 592 in amount of $2,787,700 were for refinancing on existing property, while the remaining 207 for $1,496,135 were for new home construction. At the same time the northern Illinois district office accepted for insurance a total of 595 mortgages with a loan value of $3,228,210. These figures were announced by John R. O'Connor, district director, in a brief resume of FHA accomplishment during 1935.

"This is a long step forward," said Mr. O'Connor, "in accomplishing our five-fold purpose, and with most of those engaged in the fields of real estate and building convinced that 1936 will usher in the greatest home building program of recent years, we naturally expect to handle a much greater volume of business during the coming year."

In outlining the purpose of the Federal Housing Administration in insuring loans for modernization, new construction and mortgage refinancing, Mr. O'Connor listed the five chief objectives as follows:

1. For those who desire to own homes, modernize the homes or business buildings and plants which they already own and to purchase and install necessary machinery and equipment, to make funds available at reasonable rates and upon terms of repayment which are commensurate with the borrower's capacity to pay out of income and which insure retirement of the indebtedness.
2. To induce lending institutions to lend money for these purposes, making available the savings of investors.
3. To encourage improvement in housing conditions generally. The Federal Housing Administration has established standards of quality with respect to neighborhoods, construction, architecture and materials, as well as other factors contributing to more comfortable, healthful and satisfactory housing.

4. To initiate a program of home construction in those localities in which there is a pronounced shortage of housing. The early initiation of this program has provided employment for wage earners in building trades and many allied industries.

5. To compile information by means of research in order to determine suitable fields for mortgage investment and to guide future development of residential areas.

Additional evidence of the effectiveness of FHA activity in carrying out its program was offered yesterday by two additional sources. Peter T. Swanish, chief statistician, Illinois Department of Labor, stated that 176 Illinois building concerns reported a total of 3,141 employees for the month of November, 1935, as compared with 196 firms reporting a total of only 2,766 employees for the same month last year.

Edward M. Craig, executive manager, Building Construction Employers' Association, announced that building permits for Chicago in 1935 so far totaled more than $13,000,000 as compared with $7,800,000 for 1934, an increase of more than 66% per cent. He also stated that building labor employment in the Chicago area is 15 per cent greater now than at this time last year. "This great improvement in building," said Mr. Craig, "is without question, due primarily to Federal Housing Administration activity. For, until the advent of the FHA, the building industry, as a whole, was practically at a standstill."

Check the differential and transmission frequently for the proper amount of grease, advises the emergency road service department of the Chicago Motor Club.

D.A.R. BETTER FILMS COMMITTEE REVIEW

"She Couldn't Take It" with Joan Bennett and George Raft, January 2, Thursday. A high-powered story with swift, bluff action, picturing the reformation of a racketeer and his efforts to reform the undisciplined and over-indulged family of a rich man. The cast is capable, with a particularly good performance by Walter Connolly. Adults and young adults.

"I Live My Life" with Joan Crawford, Brian Aherne, and Frank Morgan, January 3, 4, Friday and Saturday. "Three Million Dollars or an Archaeologist." The choice is made by a spoiled daughter of the rich in this swift-moving comedy-drama whose scenes shift from the Isles of Greece to a panorama of life among New York's four hundred. Frank Morgan gives an outstanding performance of the weak-minded but lovable father. Exaggerated satire of the dull rich. Adults.

"Shipmates Forever," Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler and Lewis Stone,

January 5, 6, 7, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday. A delightfully entertaining picture in which Director Borzage has deftly blended humor, pathos and music with Navy ideals of discipline, loyalty and patriotism, there is a charming love story and the picture is further enhanced by stirring scenes and beautiful photography, the well chosen cast gives a most satisfying performance. Family.

"Way Down East," Rochelle Hudson, Henry Fonda and Slim Summerville, January 8, 9, Wednesday, Thursday. Remarkable photography of change of seasons of farming country, this old fashioned melodrama furnishes enjoyable entertainment-provided by the splendid cast. Family.
