"Rebuilt Boys" Leave Arden Shore

Six boys bade a reluctant goodbye to Arden Shore camp this week and returned to their homes in Chi-Six youthful citizens, rein health and spirits thus their places in the community while six other lads, undernourished and low in morale will have the opportunity to go to the well known winter health camp. This work, of salvaging the youth of the city goes on at Arden Shore every year from October to May. No definite time is prescribed for boy's stay at camp. No formalities mark the completion of his rebuilding. With the return of normal weight, color, and courage, the boy becomes automatically ready to go home and resume his place in school or if older go out and try to

He takes away from Arden Shore many things besides added weight and improved spirits. Materially, he is richer to the extent of some decent clothes and a little pocket money earned by doing chores about the camp after lesson hours. Socially he is equipped with the means of raising his family's standard of living by passing on some of the ideas he acquired from the healthful daily routine.

One experience of camp life proves of lasting benefit to the youngsters is their introduction to nature. They make intimate acquaintance with trees, flowers and animals and actually see the stars for the first time. Mrs. Theron Colton well known on the North Shore for her nature study classes comes out to the camp one evening every week. She takes the boys out of doors and reveals to them the wonders of the night sky. Back in the city streets stars can be seen if one thinks to look for them and an interest in astronomy is something no one can ever take away from a person. Peter Petryneac, a young Polish boy recently sent to Arizona for his health through the interest of Arden Shore, wrote back asking for some maps and charts of the heavens. He said that he found the stars, even though way out west, like old friends and that they saved him from loneliness at night.

Just now the main preoccupation of every boy in camp is with bird study. Their interest was aroused during the winter months in the dozen or more different birds that came to the feeding tray in front of the main building. With spring on the way the interest mounts every day as countless species find their way into the heavily wooded camp site. Not content with all those at hand the boys hike a couple of miles to Skokie marsh severale times a week. Each new bird is recorded on a big bulletin board in the front hall with the discoverer's name beside it. This proves a most fascinating game.

All nature study at the camp is under the supervision of Mrs. Theren Colton, but is locally in charge of Benny Zatleff, a former camp boy, trained by Mrs. Colton. Benny says that when city boys first come to camp and hear they are to go in for nature study they scoff and call it "sissy stuff." But in a couple of weeks no one has to be called twice to go out on a nature hike.

In England, parents who leave their young children locked up alone in the house, while they go to the theater or other amusement, are now liable to prosecution by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Suppose you couldn't see the problem the teacher was demonstrating on the blackboard. Suppose you got a headache when you tried to learn a lot of uninteresting stuff in a textbook. Wouldn't you be bored? You bet you would! And you'd probably do just what Johnny does-stir up a little amusement. His report card shouldn't read "Deportment: D"; it should read "Eyesight: D". Start Johnny off to school this year with "Eyesight: A" and watch his report card climb up the alphabet.
