

DEERFIELD LOCALS

Rev. and Mrs. F. G. Piepenbrok and son, Frederick, left yesterday for Jackson, Missouri, where Rev. Piepenbrok will speak at a mission festival in the church of his brother, Rev. Paul Piepenbrok. Rev. Theodore Bierbaum of Elgin will occupy the pulpit of St. John's church at Highland Park, and St. Paul's church, Deerfield, on Sunday morning during the absence of the pastor, Reverend Piepenbrok.

En route to Missouri the Piepenbroks will stop off at Santa Claus, Ind. Here it was that Rev. Piepenbrok had his first pastorate twenty years ago. The postmaster, Old Santy himself, was an elder in the church. This first parish included churches in four towns — Santa Claus, Clay City, Centerville and Chrisney.

Here they will renew old acquaintances, continue on their trip to Missouri and return to Deerfield Monday.

A TRIBUTE

George Rockenbach, whose death occurred Saturday, has been a subscriber to The Press for many years and he believed in accuracy. Several weeks ago the local editor wrote a story concerning the remodeling of the old town hall and made the statement that the building was a century old. Rockenbach remembered when the building was erected and disagreed with her statement and gave the correct date — 1865 — making the building 71 years old. We will miss "Deerfield's Grand Old Man" with his keen historical mind.

DEBATE

Vernon Glas and Ambrose Cox, affirmative pair, won the debate Sunday evening at the Bethlehem church against their opponents of the negative team, Clifford Stanger and Caryl Frantz. The subject was "Resolved: That Nationalism is Compatible With International Good Will." Judges were Carl E. Bates, Irene Evenson and Edna Fritsch. The vote of the judges was two to one in favor of the affirmative.
