

This Week in Washington

Washington, D. C., June 20—Today one Member of Congress is asking another, "Do you think we will be able to adjourn by tonight?" It is the usual question at every session of Congress when the day proposed for final adjournment is reached. No one can answer it, not even the Administration leaders. One can only review the legislative obstacles which will have to be removed or hurdled.

The House adjourned last night at about 10:30 to meet again today. But the Senate labored until after 1 o'clock this morning in an effort to reach an agreement between the different groups of Senators, opposing or sponsoring certain pending legislation, that would enable the Congress to conclude tonight at the latest. Even as this is being written "lobby" agreements may be in the making and within a few minutes the whole legislative picture will change.

In the first place, one group of Senators, headed by Bennett Champ Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, has threatened to conduct a filibuster against the conference report on the Treasury and Post Office Department Appropriations Bill. He is opposing the provision which makes a $26 million 500 thousand appropriation for ocean-mail contracts. These with him contend that it amounts to subsidy without regulation.

The provision was not in the bill when it passed the Senate but rather was inserted by the House. Senator Clark is therefore contending that the Senate should not recede from its position. Last night he stated that he would resist the adoption of the conference report containing the House provision as long as he had physical strength to stand on the floor and oppose it.

One recalls the endurance of Senator Long in his filibuster at the last session. We wonder if Senator Clark has the same physical stamina. In the second place, there is another group of Senators, headed by William E. Borah, Republican, of Idaho, endeavoring to block the passage of the Guffey Coal Bill. He intimated that he would talk at some length on the subject if an effort was made to pass the bill, already adopted by the House, at this Congress.

Last night the Democratic Floor Leader, Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, stated that he was prepared to move for adjournment as soon as the tax bill and the Treasury and Post Office Department Appropriations measure were passed. In an effort to have the Senate recess last night, he made a unanimous consent motion to the effect that the Senate would consider the tax bill until 3 o'clock today and then proceed with the consideration of the appropriations bill. The motion obviously omitted the Guffey Coal Bill and immediately the Senator from Pennsylvania, Joseph F. Guffey, objected.

As to how the matter will be worked out no one can determine. It may develop that the Guffey Coal Bill will be entirely dropped, or it may develop that the opposition to it will not be as vigorous as now threatens. It is also difficult to determine just what may be done to placate the opponents to the appropriation for ocean-mail contracts. It has thus developed that two measures which many thought would experience no difficulty on the road to enactment constitute the obstacles to adjournment. The controversial relief bill has been disposed of, and it does not appear that the tax bill will represent an obstacle.

Senator Borah has been religiously the opponent of monopoly. He takes the position that the Guffey Coal Bill, which would allow the producers of bituminous coal to fix minimum prices, legalizes monopoly and would act to the detriment of labor and the consumer. He has argued for strict enforcement and strengthening of the anti-trust laws and contends that the Guffey Coal Bill would suspend them and give legal sanction to monopolistic practices.

Yesterday he stated to the Senate, "Do we wish to take up a measure which in fact creates a monopoly and under the protection of the Government permits that monopoly to fix the prices of a fuel essential to the health and comfort of millions and do all this while we are packing our trunks for home?" He may be successful in preventing this bill from passing.

Deerfield To Vote On New Fire District

Judge Perry L. Persons of the Lake county courts, has entered an order to have an election in Deerfield on July 25 for a ballot on the proposed fire protection district in West Deerfield township.

The court order was issued after a public hearing last week in the county court on the petition of residents of the locality urging the establishment of a fire protection district. The petition was presented by Attorney Charles L. Whyte from the offices of Corporation Counsel George McCaughey.

The district to be included is bounded on the north by Half Day road, Route 22; on the east by Highland Park limits; on the south one-quarter mile south of County Line road to Saunders road, then west on the County Line to the Des Plaines river.

The establishment of a fire protection district for Deerfield offers many advantages. The fire insurance rates will be lowered and there will be firemen on duty at the station twenty-four hours each day. Also more adequate fire fighting equipment will be available.

Arden Shore Opens for Summer Season

Arden Shore camp welcomed its first quota of summer campers on Thursday, June 25. Fully 500 women and children debarked during the day from special trains at the little railway stop just north of Lake Bluff and followed the winding woody road to the clearing on the lake shore where the camp buildings are situated in a grove of trees. For many it was the first glimpse of this haven which for 30 years has offered rest and release for the underprivileged of the city streets. For others it was a case of Paradise regained.

These summer guests of Arden Shore were selected, as always, by fifty different charitable agencies of Chicago. Each is allowed a certain quota and there is always difficulty in keeping the number within bounds. All races with the exception of negroes are admitted and practically every nationality is represented during the summer session which lasts until late in August.

Two weeks is the usual length of a person's stay in camp and when the first 500 leave another eager crowd comes right after them. Certain ones however stay through the whole summer—such as the convalescent girls gathered from hospitals and clinics whose program of restoration requires a longer time. Then too, some of the grandmothers, who club together in one cottage, are allowed to linger a bit if their places are not in too great demand.

The majority of the crowd however is composed of mothers and their broods who are housed in buildings ample for two or three families of medium size. Boys over 12 years join their kind in a section known as Boyville and older girls sometimes leave the family to bunk with separate groups. Tiny tots are cared for during the day in a nursery and babies under two benefit by the Baby fold where they are washed, fed, and prescribed for by trained attendants.

Each separate division of the vast organization has its own daily program of recreation. Everyone can swim in lake Michigan at least once a day and the beautiful wide beach is a delight to these dwellers in dark streets. Nature study, handicraft, sewing, games to say nothing of quiet hours of reading in the well equipped camp library are some of the pursuits enjoyed separately, while Community sings, stunt nights and the pleasurable pastime of eating three good meals a day are enjoyed en masse by the entire camp.

Arden Shore offers all of the joys and benefits of a summer resort and offers them absolutely free to those who otherwise would have no outing from one year to the next. Friends of Arden Shore in all of the north shore suburbs and Chicago make this possible by their yearly contributions to community chests or local drives and by their gifts of clothing, furniture and equipment of all kinds. The camp is always open to visitors and the sight of this unique institution in full swing proves a powerful incentive to furthering the cause in every possible way.

A plea to motorists FROM THE MOTHERS ON OUR ROUTES

We see them in our business every day and get to know them... bright-eyed youngsters and their mothers in the many homes we serve. But all too often a Bowman driver finds that, between one morning's trip and the next, sorrow has come to a whole neighborhood. A child is missing from play. There's a heart-
