HIGHLAND PARK ILLINOIS

Book Notes

The Highland Park Public Library has eight of the ten magazine articles which have been voted the outstanding contributions to the periodical literature for the month of July. The magazines are on file in the current racks at the library and may be consulted there.

The titles of the articles, the authors, and the magazine in which they appear follow:

"The Search for an American Way," by Henry A. Wallace in Scribner's Magazine. Secretary Wallace says that the future of the constitution depends on whether the Supreme court interprets it according to the letter or the spirit; and comes out strongly for the co-operative way of living as the next step for America.

"Medicine's Horse and Buggy," by James Rorty in The Forum. Who is stopping health insurance? The simple answer would be: the American Medical association. But it is not so simple as that, as Mr. Rorty explains in his masterful and revealing diagnosis of the complex situation.

"Teaching Grandmother How To Spin," by William L. Nichols in Harper's Magazine. There is a neat paradox brought out in this article. It appears that a government project, widely derided as a menace to the private utilities, is conferring upon these very companies some of the benefits of competition.

"The Next Great Plague To Go," by Thomas Parran, M.D., in Survey Graphic. The Surgeon General calls on the people of the United States to stamp out syphilis, which threatens to become "the great American disease."

"The Yankee Trader in 1936," by Percy W. Bidwell in The Yale Review. A tariff expert examining the new foreign trade treaties negotiated by Secretary Hull finds plenty of true Yankee shrewdness in them, but warns against the danger that in our tariff bargaining we may be "too smart for our own good."

"Humor and America," by Max Eastman in Scribner's Magazine. In an essay that is full of laughter, Mr. Eastman shows that our culture began a hundred years ago in American humor and that, born in the pioneer era of skeptical common sense, its direction is entirely different from that of Europe, created in an age of imaginative belief.

"The Myth of the Open Door," by Nathaniel Peffer in Asia Magazine. In one of his masterly discussions, Mr. Peffer explains the Open Door as an unreality which should be forgotten for the most vital issue in the Far East now—"the integrity of China."

"America Faces Bankruptcy," by H. Parker Willis in The American Mercury. The former Secretary of the Federal Reserve Board warns that the Roosevelt monetary policies are certain to lead to the greatest disaster in history. When it comes, the property and savings of the population will be wiped out.

"Cinderella Married," an amusing play by Rachel Field, based on the well-known story of Cinderella will be presented Friday afternoon at two-thirty in the Library auditorium. There will be no admission charge, and all children are welcome.

D.A.R. Better Films Committee Review

"I Married a Doctor." Cast: Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson, Guy Kibbee, Louise Fazenda. Thursday, July 23. Small town life with its jealousies, malicious gossip and self satisfaction. Almost destroys the happiness of its popular young doctor and his city wife. Intelligent, sympathetic portrayals on the part of Josephine Hutchinson and Pat O'Brien. Adults.

"Feticoat Fever." Cast: Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, Reginald Owen. Friday, Saturday, July 24-25. When their plane crashes in the ice off Labrador, an English Lord and his fiancée are forced to seek refuge in the cabin of the wrecked operator. The latter promptly falls in love with the Lord's young lady. This is definitely good entertainment because of clever dialogue, excellent cast and good direction. Adults.

"The Unguarded Hour." Cast: Loretta Young, Franchot Tone, Lewis Stone, Roland Young. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, July 26, 27, 28. An unscrupulous blackmailer weaver the proverbial tangled web which enmeshes a London barrister and his beautiful wife. This picture is cleverly directed with psychological factors stirred and although it starts out along the beaten path, it soon takes on new angles which are refreshingly different. Family.

"The Country Beyond." Cast: Rochelle Hudson, Paul Kelly, Robert Kent. Wednesday, Thursday, July 29-30.

James Oliver Curwood's story comes to the screen against a background of exquisite scenery, beautifully photographed. Expert direction of a well-chosen cast, including a new screen personality, Robert Kent and a fine performance by the beautiful dog, Buckall, add to the interest of the production. Excellent for family.

Private Is Killed in Fall from Train

Edward J. Kawitowski, 21 years old, a private in the Headquarters battery, 3rd Field Artillery, at Ft. Sheridan, fell from a Northwestern railroad freight train on which he was riding from Camp McCoy, last Friday and was instantly killed. The accident occurred near Sparta, Wis.

Wisconsin to Have Hambletonian Stake at State Fair Aug. 20

Wisconsin's own edition of the famous Hambletonian Stake will be trotted here during the State Fair, Aug. 22-29, when the victor of the Goshen Derby and all of his crack rivals compete in the $7,000 American Stake for 3-year-olds.

That a Badger State colt may win the coveted Hambletonian and continue his victorious campaign here is indicated by the fast progress being made by Knight Hanover, owned by Michael Schneider, of Milwaukee, in training and racing.

With the American Stake boasting 19 candidates, all of which are Hambletonian hopefuls, Milwaukee will see the entire reproduction of the world's richest trotting derby. What the Preakness is to the Kentucky Derby, following the latter by two weeks in the thoroughbred racing sport, so will Milwaukee be to Goshen.

The American Stakes, comprising four divisions, of which their rich 3-year-old trot is but one, will see nine 3-year-old pacers go to the post in the $2,500 wiggling event; thirty-three 2-year-old trotters are eligible to the $4,000 division, while 10 juvenile pacers are candidates for the $1,500 division.

These stakes, promising the Wisconsin State Fair one of the outstanding Grand Circuit meetings of the season, are amplified by a free-for-all trot which will bring the internationally renowned Greyhound to Milwaukee; a free-for-all pace, with the country's fastest sidewheelers as candidates; and eight other early closing events which have drawn several hundred horses.

Grand Circuit horses and those from Wisconsin and other midwest states should bring 500 equine performers to the Fair Park here next month.

Carnival Is Success Appreciate Support

The St. James Parish annual Carnival held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Sunset Park, was a most successful affair. The weather man was most gracious in sparing heat and rain, so that the people did not stay away. Father Holly, pastor, and Father Ward, assistant, are most grateful to the public for their splendid patronage of the carnival. Thanks are also due to the Gold Coast Revelers, under E. Lenzi, for the splendid music furnished for dancing during the carnival.

Amateur hour, held each evening, brought fourth a great deal of talent, and drew the attention of a large crowd each night. The committees in charge should be congratulated upon the success of this affair, for it was by their untiring efforts that its success was attained.
