SYNOPSIS OF LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Given Last Tuesday Evening by John Randall Dunn, at Elm Place School

Meaning of Words "Real" and "Unreal"

Since the First Cause is good, then everything proceeding from this Cause must be good—must be real, existent in Truth. What, then, can be said of that which is not good, that which is sick, sinful, discordant? Christian Science avers that being unlike good it is un-real, without cause, law, presence, or power. It is therefore the absence of the real, and can be dealt with only as you would deal with any absence—darkness, for instance. Is darkness something, or the absence of something? How do you get rid of it—by doing anything to it, by examining it, or endeavoring to find out where it came from? No, one just turns on the light. Many people appear to spend precious moments vainly seeking the origin of evil. How could a good God, they ask, cause or even permit evil? If God made everything good, whence came the sickness, the sin? The moment the truth dawns on one that that which he is trying to trace is the absence of something, and not the presence of something, at that moment should his quest cease. You cannot find the origin of an absence. Can you trace the history of Jack and the Beanstalk, for instance? Certainly not, for you are dealing with a myth, that which has no truth or reality. Mrs. Eddy calmly and bravely sticks to her text, that all that seems to oppose God, good, is the myth of mortal material sense; that it is unreal, not happening, not taking place in Truth; and therefore it belongs not to God's kingdom and must disappear. Does not the master-Christian confirm this when, first, he calls the devil (evil) a liar and the father of lies, and secondly, when in the Lord's Prayer he ascribes all power or reality to God, Spirit, in the immortal words, "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever?"

Does the Scientist Ignore Evil? Does this mean that the Christian Scientist ignores evil? The flippancy charge has been made that students of Science airily assert that there is no reality in evil, and therefore they can indulge in it without evil effect.

Nothing can be farther from the truth than this. Insisting on evil's powerlessness and the allness of God, good, Mrs. Eddy has shown humanity how everything unlike good may be wiped out of consciousness—may be utterly annihilated. The student therefore loses first his fear of or belief in the power of evil, then his love for it and the suffering which results from belief in it; and, if this does not happen, he may know that he must gain a clearer understanding of this Christly teaching.

Basis of Christian Science Prayer
Let us here consider briefly the basis of the healing prayer, of Christian Science. First, what is our concept of God? To whom or what are we praying? Do we have a picture of a human being before us—one who must be pleaded with or argued with, one who arbitrarily might be withholding good or justice from His children? If so, the very basis of our prayer is faulty. Christ Jesus taught us that God is Spirit, the opposite of the material; that He is a loving Father who is in heaven; in other words, God who is everlastingly harmonious, and the Giver only of good and harmony to His children. At no time does the Master indicate that this good God is the author of discord or disease. In fact, on one notable occasion he definitely states that a certain afflicted woman was bound by Satan, not by God; and what is Satan but ignorance of God—another absence!

Man Is Not Alone
What an example of this harmonious, joy-bringing unity between God and man does Christ Jesus ever present! Seldom do we find him speaking just of himself; it is always himself and the Father. Once, a little wistfully perhaps, he prophesied that his friends and disciples would all be scattered and leave him alone; but quickly came this triumphant declaration, "Yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me!" On another occasion he said: "I can of mine own self do nothing;" and "The Father that dwelleth in me, he does the works." Here, then, is the secret of the Master's wonderful success. Here is the answer to your problems and mine. Are we going to our business, our work, our tasks today by ourselves? Is our job today just to "keep body and soul together"—as the popular saying has it—to work selfishly for our own good? Then be not surprised at the consequent fear, burden, friction, and weariness. Ours is the privilege today of taking God with us—of taking the consciousness of the Father's care with us when we go to business; and of returning at night safe in that care, unafraid and unwearied. An impossible ideal, you say? Try it! If you are an executive, take God, take this understanding of Principle with you today. Let Principle, justice, honesty veto every unworthy, mean, dishonest, or shady business venture. You cannot lose in the long run. You lose only if you do not side with Principle. Take divine Love with you in your relationship with your employees. Yes, you are your brother's keeper! None of us can escape the responsibility and privilege of being the keeper of the right thought about the brother. Is divine Love, divine justice, fixing the compensation of your helpers? Is this Love being manifested through your reflection thereof to the humblest one in your employ? If so, behold the harmony of your organization, the enthusiastic teamwork of your fellows. If you are a subordinate worker, are thoughts of God going each morning with you to business? Are you taking His hand and striving to realize that in truth He is your only master, and that in reflecting intelligence, brotherly love, alertness, right activity, you are working for Him? Are you staying close to God when confronted with the problem of a dictatorial human "boss," or unlovely and unloving fellow-employees? God-with-us means heaven, harmony, with us; justice with us, good with us, power and peace with us.

Issue Stamp to Mark Phone Cable Opening

The first postage stamps ever printed, so far as is known, to commemorate the opening of a telephone service have recently been issued by the Australian government to mark the establishment of telephonic communication between the mainland of Australia and the "island state" of Tasmania through a submarine telephone cable 169 miles long.

The stamps are of two denominations, two-pence in red and three-pence in blue, identical in general design. A symbolic figure standing on a sea-shell in the center of the stamp holds in one hand a trident and with the other supports a cable which crosses the watery expanse of Bass Strait. The cable landings at Apollo Bay, Victoria, and Stanley, Tasmania, are depicted in the margins. In the foreground, at the feet of the figure, are the words "Commemorating the opening of submarine telephone communication to Tasmania, 1936."

This submarine telephone cable was manufactured in England, and was taken to Australia in the cable ship "Faraday," which left Woolwich on September 7, 1935. The laying of the cable was completed on November 25, and service between the mainland and Tasmania was inaugurated on March 25, 1936. The cable is of the coaxial type, consisting essentially of a central copper conductor surrounded by pararguta insulation, around which the other conductor is wound in the form of six concentric copper tapes. The whole is then heavily armored with copper, jute, and steel wire. The coaxial arrangement makes possible the transmission of five telephone conversations, 36 telegraph messages, and a radio broadcast program at one time. Although the cable extends for 169 miles, it was made in two nearly equal lengths, which are joined on

King Island, about midway between the two main cable landings. There are some 16,000 telephones on the island of Tasmania. Now that these are linked by cable with the telephones on the mainland of Australia, they are also within reach of all Bell System and Bell-connecting telephones, since radio telephone service between this country and Australia has been in operation for some years.
