But You Can Buy Highland Park

National pride is a fine thing — loyalty to country, to the ideals for which a nation stands and upon which it is founded, is among the finest emotions that stir in men's breasts.

But in the name of patriotism there are sometimes committed acts which in reality defeat the purpose for which they were originated.

An example of this has been the campaign to "Buy American." It sounds like a good, patriotic, 100% American thing to do, "Buy American."

After a few years of this the Indians would move back into the land and all would once more be peace and sylvan contentment.

The same line of reasoning holds true with regard to the idea of "Buy Illinois." New Yorkers would soon be buying New York, Californians California, and so on down the line.

But there is one place where the principle of buying locally does hold true — and that is in a non-manufacturing, suburban residential community such as Highland Park.

Here we have no factories that demand an outlet. Produce comes in from outside to find distribution in our community. We are essentially a residential community.

As a residential city our desirability depends in some measure upon the success of the local merchants who serve us. Their business depends entirely upon the patronage of the residents of this one locale.

Therefore it behooves us to support our local trades people. Not just in a pinch, when we are in a jam. If they weren't there to serve us we would squawk loudly.

Perhaps we can't get all that we need in the local stores. If we buy the things that are available, there will soon be more, merchants will enlarge their stocks, quarters, and services. The thing is cumulative, and in the end will redound to the benefit of ourselves as residents property owners, and to the community in which we live.

Arden Shore Holds Circus. Plan for Nature Pageant

All of the mothers, the camp staff, and friends of Arden Shore from neighboring suburbs composed the audience which was seated encircling the natural arena in front of the administration building.

Every event, the Italian dancers, who distributed flowers to the audience; the beautifully trained pony ballet, the acrobats, the jugglers was announced by a group of barkers dressed in 1890 costumes.

Extra special numbers were introduced by a ringmaster in full regalia. The circus ended in traditional fashion with a wild west show in which cowboys and Indians fought it out fiercely until the sound of it out ferociously until the sound of it out ferociously until the sound of it out

Another thing that was a very happy evening for the host of women and children to which every day at the camp gives a great measure of unaccustomed joy. True community spirit among the group was evi-dentified by the remarkable way in which this crowd of children strangers to each other, to their environment, and in some cases to the common English language, got up such a smooth performance in the short space of a week.

Next week the final contingent of five hundred or more campers, the last of the season, will unite in presenting a nature pageant under the direction of Mrs. Theron Colton who for a number of years, both in summer and winter, has brought an understanding of the out-dorts to countless city street-dwellers who seek the shelter of Arden Shore.

"Things to Come." Cast: Raymond Massey, Ralph Richardson, Margaretta Scott, Thursday, Aug. 20. An extraordinary, lavish production. "Things to Come," attempts to portray future wars of pestilence, revolutions and finally peace. Highly imaginative, the film will appeal to the eye rather than to the emotions, since the stage settings rather than the characterization are emphasized.

"Trouble for Two." Cast: Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, Frank Morgan, Friday, Saturday, Aug. 21, 22. Robert Louis Stevenson's stories concerning the "Suicide Club" are the basis for this lightly entertaining film with plenty of action and amusing situations, with mystery and romance combined. Splendid work by a splendid cast, unusual settings and interesting musical background. Adults and young adults.

"Fury." Cast: Sylvia Sidney, Spencer Tracy, Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, Sunday, Monday, Aug. 23, 24. This picture, a powerful indictment against mob rule, is an intensely forceful and gripping drama based on the psychological study of a man falsely accused of kidnapping and threatened by an infuriated mob, thought-provoking entertainment. Adults and young adults.

"Hearts Divided." Cast: Marion Davies, Dick Powell, Charlie Ruggles, Claude Rains, E. E. Horton, Arthur Treacher, Tuesday, Wednesday, Aug. 25, 26. A very stylish historical romance which tells the story of the love of Jerome Bonaparte for Betsy Patterson of Baltimore and the cleverness with which Napoleon frustrated their plans. Lavish stage settings, beautiful photography and an interesting insight into the life of the day add materially to the production. Good entertainment for the family.

"Devil's Squadron." Cast: Richard Dix, Karen Morley, Lloyd Nolan, Stanley Ross, Thursday, Friday, Aug. 27, 28. Daring courage is displayed daily by those men known as test pilots. Dramatically this tense theme is developed into a thrilling motion picture which tells the story of the accomplishment of a dream, but not before many lives have been sacrificed and planes destroyed. Capable cast, excellent photography of planes in action. Family. But not for nervous children.

On Sunday, Aug. 9, ten candidates were initiated into the Forty and Eight, Volture 604, at the Serbian Monastery north of Libertyville.

The Forty and Eight is the honor group of the American Legion and its membership is composed of active leaders in the Legion.

Following are the initiates: Max Ekelmann, J. H. Galley, John Olson, J. E. Abernathy, Adolph Pesat Jr., Steven Urban, Thomas Sutherland, Cecil Minter, William Heardt and W. S. Phillips.

Louis Crawford of Waukegan, chef de gare, opened the ceremonies which were conducted by Bruno H. Henderson of Waukegan. Mr. Henderson was assisted by Jack Church of Libertyville, Miller Schreiner of Highland Park, Henry Hansen of Deerfield. James Sullivan, state chef de gare, administered the oath.

A comic sidelight on the affair was perpetrated by Henry Hansen, who laughed so hard at the antics of the initiates that he split the seat of his pants wide open and returned home wearing his coat in lieu of the proverbial barrel.

Deerfield Residents Warned to Lock Up

Thieves have been busy in the northwest section of Deerfield for the past two months, emptying gas tanks on automobiles, removing spare tires and auto accessories, stealing poultry, etc. One night not so long ago when gas tanks were being drained Deerfield's Police Officer, Percy McLaughlin, who lives in that neighborhood, found an iron pick stuck in his tire.

From a meager description given by one of the victims the thief is described as a tall thin man wearing dark blue shirt and trousers, and other details that put several persons under suspicion and it is believed the thief will soon be discovered.

One party reported at the village board meeting that a man of this description entered his chicken coop and stole several chickens. He was discovered on the way out of the yard and two shots were fired but apparently missed their mark.

Mayor Harry Wing advises that all property owners keep garages and poultry houses locked, and to notify the police if the prowlers are seen again.
