Deerfield P. O. Has Large Demand for U. S. Savings Bonds

Wayne C. Taylor, acting secretary of the treasury, announced today that the one-half billion dollar mark maturity value of sales of U. S. Savings Bonds had been passed.

Savings Bonds were first made available on March 1, 1935. For the ten months' period from that date to the end of the year, purchases amounted to a maturity value of $259,000,000 or an average daily sale for each business day for that period of approximately $1,000,000

John J. Welch, postmaster at the Deerfield post office, reports a steady demand for United States Savings Bonds.

Twice each year The Highland Park Press features Rydex Grey-tone, printed stationery, in a special sale. During August only you can buy this fine paper for only One Dollar per box. Ideal for gifts. Fine for your own correspondence.

maturity value. Purchases from Jan. 1, 1936, to July 6, represent maturity value of $241,000,000 or an average daily sale of approximately $1,535,000 for each business day, reflecting a 50 per cent increase in the average daily sales for the year 1936 over 1935.

Savings Bonds may be purchased at all post offices of the first and second classes, at most of the third class, and at some of the fourth class offices, or direct by mail from the Treasurer of the U.S., or any Federal Reserve Bank. The direct by mail sales have likewise shown a consistent ratio of increase during the last several months. The upward trend of sales is apparently due not only to increasing numbers of new purchasers but to the purchases made by present owners at regular intervals.

Savings Bonds are sold in denominations from $25 to $1,000, maturity value. The $100, maturity value bond — $75 purchase price — is proving by far to be the most popular, especially among those who are purchasing Savings Bonds under the new regular purchase plan recently announced by the Treasury department. This plan provides that upon request, the Treasury department will mail a memorandum statement each week, month, or at other regular intervals as the purchaser may elect.

Savings Bonds may be redeemed at any time after 90 days from date of issue and the redemption is never less than the purchase price.

"WHAT DOES AIR CONDITIONING COST?"

● Today you can buy air conditioning as you would buy any other staple commodity. There is a choice of types and there is difference in the purpose of each piece of equipment. And there is, of course, a difference in the cost, depending on what you desire. The answer to your question, "What does air conditioning cost?" may be found in the answer to the question, "What kind of air conditioning do you want?"

THE simplest approach to air conditioning, although strictly speaking it cannot be considered that, is the electric fan. It gives partial relief in hot weather. Its cooling effect is fundamental... the moving and circulating of still air. Because of its utter simplicity, it is the most inexpensive type of cooling. The cost of an electric fan is often little more than the cost of a straw hat.

moves the hot air from the attic and draws in the cool night air through windows in the lower floors, creating a refreshing constant breeze. The effect is much like that of a sleeping porch. And the cost for this comfort throughout the whole house is about that of an average household electric refrigerator.

More recent development are individual room cooling units that provide complete summer air conditioning for limited spaces. These self-contained room coolers cool, clean, dehumidify and circulate refreshing air. There are several kinds and they are standard commercial products of well known manufacturers. You may select your bedroom, or your living room, or your office to be air conditioned with one of these efficiently designed units without building alterations for approximately the cost of a good fur coat.

From Nature itself comes the principle of another new device for providing protection against hot stuffy homes in summer. Air in motion, complete air circulation throughout the house is a job given to the attic cooling system. A large but relatively slow exhaust fan pulls hot air out of the house through an attic window. It re-

IR circulation, on a slightly more comprehensive basis, is the principle of the kitchen ventilating fan. Here is a device that provides great comfort in what is usually the warmest room in the home. Hot air, food odors, cooking steam are drawn out of the kitchen by an exhaust fan fitted high in the room, over a window or door. A kitchen ventilating fan costs no more than a fairly good radio.

A COMPLETE air conditioning system is now well within the reach of families with little better than the average incomes. Such a system would not only provide complete cooling and circulation during hot weather, but would also provide the proper control of temperature and humidity together with the distribution of purified air during both summer and winter months irrespective of outside conditions. Thus, an entire home can have the advantages of complete air conditioning, in all its phases, throughout the entire year. Several systems of this type are available for new homes at little more than the cost of a good automobile.

● Our engineers, familiar, through experience, with the many aspects of air conditioning are ready to consult with those living in the suburban and outlying Chicagoland territory served by this Company. They will gladly furnish information that has proved helpful to many. And they will gladly put those interested in touch with the many qualified dealers in air-conditioning equipment.

DON'T MAKE THE SAME MISTAKE TWICE THIS TIME, USE... CONCRETE

EVERY STREET—business or residential—that has developed bumps, ruts or chuckholes, cries for repaving with concrete.

Don't let the old mistakes be made again. Concrete is smooth, safe and clean—and stays that way through decades of hard service.

Concrete actually costs less than any other pavement of equal load-bearing capacity—and costs far less for upkeep. It saves motorists money by reducing car operating expense. Its non-skid surface is safe to drive on night or day, wet or dry. Its cleanliness and attractive appearance improve property values.

Urge your public officials to use concrete when they pave your streets.
