

URGE CITIZENS TO-

day afternoon pushed up the "mercury" on the Chest thermometers to $25,000, well over the half way mark.

"We are pleased with the splendid work done by our loyal workers in the first week of the campaign," Herman A. Zischke, chairman of the General Campaign Committee, said last night.

"I feel certain that if the fine driving spirit that they have manifested in the first few days of the campaign is continued without let down through to next Monday evening that we will reach our goal in the twelve day campaign period, but if by chance we fall short, I assure you there will be no stopping of our efforts until we have 'gone over the top.'"

Citizens Urged to Subscribe

"Citizens generally can help our workers who are giving so much of their time and effort to make a campaign record this year, by making their subscriptions promptly when called upon," Mr. Zischke said, "and thus make it unnecessary for the workers to call several times upon each prospect before securing their subscription. Every Highland Park owes it to this fine group of workers to make their task as light as possible. Effort is being made to reach every family in Highland Park before the end of the week. If by Friday or Saturday, however, anyone has not been called upon, we shall greatly appreciate their calling Chest Headquarters, H. P. 470, and notifying us. A worker will be dispatched immediately to pick up the subscriptions."

Chest Movie Interesting

Much splendid publicity has been given to the campaign, under the direction of Mr. William D. McDonald, chairman of the Publicity Committee. Particularly interesting is the short sound motion picture which the Alcyon Theatre has been showing gratuitously since the opening of the campaign. This picture presents Hon. Samuel M. Hastings, general chairman of the Community Chest, and Cloud Wampler, president, in short talks and introduce many other outstanding Highland Park citizens in their capacity as representatives of the member Welfare Agencies of the Chest.

The picture was contributed to the Campaign Publicity Committee by Mr. L. Mercer Francisco of Highland Park and produced by the Wilding Pictures Productions, Inc., of which he is managing editor.

Chest Unifies Community

One of the finest talks heard at the opening dinner of the Chest Campaign at Exmoor Country Club last Wednesday evening, was made by Dr. J. D. O'Neill, who spoke on the great need today, throughout the world, the Nation, the State, and the local community, for unifying forces which would serve to bring people together in the spirit of neighborliness and understanding.

The Community Chest, Dr. O'Neill said, was such a force and he congratulated the City of Highland Park on the fact that this unifying force in which its citizens, regardless of political or religious beliefs and their personal interests could be brought together in a common cause.

Girl Scouts Hold Field Institute in Winnetka Oct. 27

One of the high spots of the year for Girl Scout enthusiasts will be the Field Institute to be held next Tuesday, October 27, from 10 to 3:30 at the Winnetka Community house, 620 Lincoln ave., near Pine st. The Skokie Area Girl Scout Council—Highland Park, Glencoe and Winnetka—will be hostesses to the Kenilworth, Winnetka and Evanston. Everyone interested in the Girl Scout program is encouraged to come.

"The educational opportunities of the Girl Scout Program" is the topic to be discussed from all its varying angles, by Mrs. Katie Lee Johnson, national staff member in the Great Lakes region, and Mrs. Walter Cavanaugh of the Regional Board, as well as other experts in the field.

This Week in Washington

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Adjustments of the principles of democracy to changes in the social order are essential to the continued existence of a democratic form of government, under which all men are free and equal. The imperative necessity of such adjustments becomes extremely real to us in periods of stress and strain.

That has been my thesis in this series of articles of the last few weeks. It represents, in my judgment, at least, the truly progressive attitude as opposed to the "status quo," on the one hand, and revolutionary panaceas, on the other.

The question of how to translate into effective action the principle of "equal protection under the law" for all men is a part of this large adjustment problem with which we are confronted. It constitutes the very practical question as to how to make justice accessible to every man. In that connection our particular attention should be directed to the wage-earner.

In a book entitled "America's Capacity to Consume," the Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C., states that even in 1929 there were 2,102,000 families with an annual income of less than $500. One can get a mental picture of the problem in the administration of justice if he imagines the plight of a workingman who has a legal right but is without the money to enforce it in the courts.

In an article which appeared in The Forum about two years ago H. D. Mims stated, "To the man without means justice is a luxury. . . . The delay complicates his problem." Likewise Judge Andrew A. Bruce wrote in his book entitled "The American Judge," "These excessive costs and these unnecessary delays close our courts to the average citizen."

There are thus three elements in the administration of justice which represent obstacles to the wage-earner: delay, court costs and fees, and attorney fees. These three factors, from the point of view of the wage-earner, have tended to thwart effective protection for him under the law. They are factors which developed with the radical alteration of the conditions of life in America by economic and social forces.

It is impossible to enumerate here, let alone begin to explain, the various remedial agencies that have been established in the different states and different cities to deal with this problem. It is likewise impossible in a brief space to give due credit to bar associations and legal-aid organizations for the large part they have played in developing remedies.

To obtain quick and inexpensive justice for the wage-earner the remedial developments have taken different forms. They include such agencies as small-claims courts, conciliation tribunals, industrial accident commissions, legal assistance through state administrative officials, and legal-aid organizations, law clinics and bar association committees. An admirable beginning has been made, and we may be proud of the fact that the State of Illinois has been one of the more progressive States.

One of the major developments has been the establishment of small-claims courts. For the most part their jurisdiction is over matters involving $50 or less and includes such claims as debts, wages, disputes about rent and detention of property under the claim of lien. Formal rules of pleading, trial procedure and evidence are largely dispensed with, and through the medium of the small-claims courts the workingman is able to secure quick and inexpensive justice.

During 1935 in the small-claims branch of the municipal court of Chicago 28,833 cases were filed. The number is indicative of the appeal they have to the average man. Legal intricacies are eliminated. Expense of court fees is greatly reduced. Employment of counsel becomes unnecessary. Judgments are swift. All these things are of primary importance to the man who is, for example, desirous of collecting wages in the amount of $50 which were not paid him.

Massachusetts was the first State to establish a State-wide system of such courts. Other States have adopted a like procedure, but we have yet to adopt the plan on a broad scale. A splendid beginning has been made but much remains to be accomplished.

Small-claims courts are only one of the remedial agencies. I suggest them here in order to indicate how it is possible to find practical solution to the question as to how to make justice accessible to every man, rich or poor.

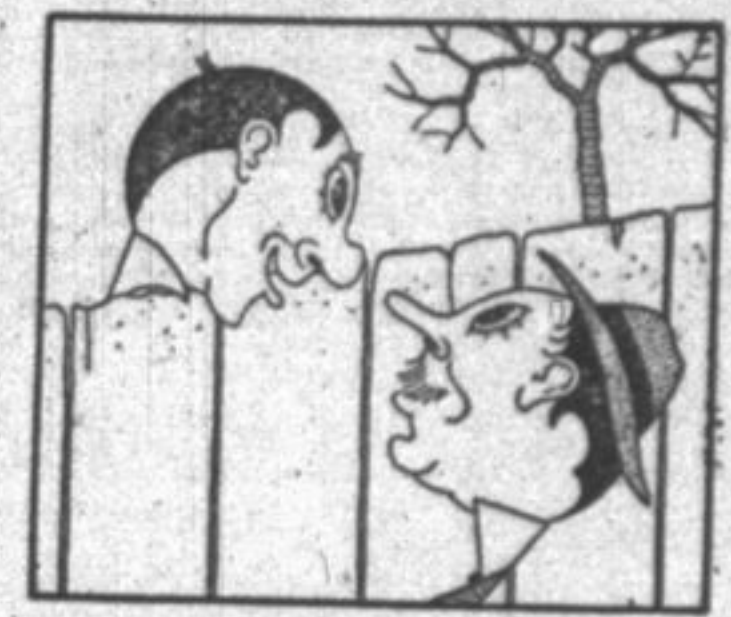

The late President Woodrow Wilson once said, "The speediness of justice, the inexpensiveness of justice, the ready access of justice is the great part of justice itself."
