GIVE CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

"Charity gives itself rich; covetousness hoards itself poor." Eight weeks ago today appeared an editorial on this page with that same line as a leader. That editorial signaled the start of a drive by the citizens of Highland Park to provide funds for human needs.

Today, eight weeks after the starting gun that set them off on their project of mercy, the people of Highland Park are rejoicing in the near completion of their task.

In a community of 15,000 people the sum of $45,000 represents a sacrifice and earnest effort on the part of a large percentage of the population. It shows forth a truly co-operative sense, a well organized community spirit of which the town may be proud.

In any movement of this kind there are leaders—individuals who take responsibility upon themselves, or who may accept willingly and conscientiously responsibility that is placed upon them, and carry through to the finish. These loyal individuals seldom receive the acclaim and adulation of the crowds. More often they labor in silence, and take their reward in the satisfaction of a job well done.

In another section of this paper appears a complete list of those men and women who served on committees under the leadership of Herman A. Zischke, chairman, whose untiring efforts made the campaign a success.
