Editorial

With joy and gratitude in their hearts for the return of prosperity to their country, approximately a hundred and thirty million American people are today celebrating their most typically American holiday.

The spirit of Thanksgiving has persisted with purity and force through the years and centuries since its inception. Its force is probably greater and more sincere in many ways than any of the other great days which mark the calendar year of American life.

Independence Day has become an opportunity for the kids to blow off a great deal of excess energy while Mom and Dad take it easy on the beach. New Years Day is spent largely in recovering from the year's Big Night. Even the celebration of the appearing of the Christ-spirit to the world has become confused and disturbed by a great orgy of spending and giving and receiving which has in many instances overshadowed the true significance of Christmas.

Founded in the sufferings and achievements of the first sturdy pioneers in New England, born of their heartfelt gratitude for the meager fare which to them meant salvation from death by cold and starvation, the spirit of Thanksgiving glows strongly today.

How many of us, as we participate in rich, luxurious celebrations, fail to think of those early heroes, fail to offer a silent prayer of gratitude for all that God has given us?

If our gratitude is sincere, and the citizens of Highland Park have particular cause for deep gratitude, we may find it easier to express in action rather than words; superficiality flows easily off the tongue, sincerity strikes deep, and moves the heart.

Does it not, then, seem right that a generous, kindly act should put us in harmony with the spirit of Thanksgiving? Therein lies our debt, and in that way may we discharge it. Let each one of us on Thanksgiving Day, honor God, who has given us all things, and those early Americans whose spiritual-mindedness and fortitude hastened the flowering of this country, by helping onward with the thought and action our fellow men.

Chicago Paper to Put Out Special Edition Thursday

A Thanksgiving day issue, featuring a special high school football section with all-star selections and pictures of all teams in the city, Catholic, Suburban, and West Suburban leagues, will be published by the Chicago Daily News.

For the last four years the Daily News has picked all-star elevens from each of the four leagues and a Big Four team composed of the outstanding players from all the sections. This year, as in the past, the coaches in each school are assisting Daily News sports experts by sending in their nominations for a first and second team from their own leagues. Players are given two points for nomination on the first team, and one point for the second. The number of points gathered determines the selection.

The four sectional all-star teams and their pictures will be featured in a full page, while another full page of action and candid pictures will honor the Big Four eleven. This is in addition to the group photographs of all the teams in the four leagues.

Nine pages of stories and pictures compose this section which is included in every edition of the Thanksgiving issue of the Daily News.

Local Men Invent Printing Devices

Two very interesting aids to accuracy and speed of operation are being displayed at the Highland Park Press office this week. Both are the inventions of local men. Mr. C. V. Wilson of 354 Roger Williams ave. has just developed a copy scale and type area finder, together with a Roto-Typometer, for the use of printers or newspaper men. Mr. A. J. Baldauf of 645 Waverly road has just placed on the market a magniscope.

The type area finder and copy scale enables one to count a page of typewritten matter in a jiffy. The Roto-typometer is designed primarily to enable a printer to determine quickly and easily the proper size and face of type in which to set a given job of printing or an advertisement.

The magniscope is designed to aid the proofreader, for it may be adjusted for the convenience of the reader, and contain a magnifying glass to enlarge the type, so that one may read small type with ease. Both inventions are a valuable aid to the printing business.
