Sunday Evening Club
"Jungle Life in Mexico," is to be the subject of the lecture by Donald Robertson on February 28 at the Sunday Evening club in St. Paul's church. This is the tenth program of the 1936-37 series and the fourth season of these instructive and entertaining gatherings arranged by the Rev. Mr. F. G. Piepenbrok.

Drama
"Three Corned Moon," a lively, rollicking comedy, under the auspices of the Deerfield Grammar School P. T. A., will be presented by the Presbyterian Dramatic club, on Friday evening (tomorrow) in the school gymnasium. The curtain rises at 8:15 p.m. and promises to be the best play staged in dramatics. Scully-Houser Wedding
In a very pretty home wedding Miss Margaret Scully became the bride of Mr. Charles Houser on Saturday evening, with Rev. F. G. Piepenbrok of St. Paul's church officiating. The bride, a daughter of the Senior Philip Scullys, wore white satin, a long tulle veil, and carried white sweet peas and snap dragons. Miss Jean Scully was her sister's bridesmaid and her frock was of pale blue satin and her bouquet was pink tea roses and sweet peas. Little Lorraine Hatch, dressed in yellow, was the ring bearer and the five year old twin nieces of the bride, Jean and Joan Grovner of Chicago, wearing blue, were the pages. The groom, a son of Mrs. T. B. Houser of Danville, was served as best man by Robert Kamminga of Deerfield. The wedding march was played by the bride's niece, Miss Patricia Stace, and Mrs. Clyde Schoonover was the vocalist. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Phil Scully, acting for his father who was ill. Among the sixty guests present were the groom's mother and his two sisters, Mrs. Marie Fredericks and Miss Katherine Houser, all of Danville, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Houser are living in Chicago.

Klotz-Schwab Wedding
A wedding of interest to the people of Deerfield took place in the Little Brown church, Nashua, Iowa, at 2 o'clock last Thursday afternoon, Feb. 18, when Miss Nellie Viola Klotz of Fredricksburg, Iowa, became the bride of Mr. Oscar F. Schwab, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schwab of Deerfield.
The bride, who was lovely in a gown of white satin with a long tulle veil, carried a bouquet of pink roses and freesias. She was attended by her sister, Miss Eva Klotz, who was gowned in blue and carried harmonizing flowers. Barbara Marie Schwab, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schwab of Deerfield, and Cynthia Ann Borcharding, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Borcharding of Nashua, Iowa, who attended the bride as flower-girls, were adorable in frocks of pink crepe, carrying colonial mouquets. The groom's cousin, Mr. Alfred Ott, served as best man.

A reception at the bride's home in Fredricksburg followed the ceremony. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schwab, were unable to attend the wedding because of Mrs. Schwab's recent illness, but his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schwab, and their daughter, were present.
Their many friends in Deerfield extend congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Schwab and his bride, who will be at home at 1122 Hazel avenue, Deerfield, the latter part of this month.

Silver Wedding
About forty guests gave a surprise party on Saturday evening in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mooney of Ridge road, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Mystery
Pedestrians and motorists who passed the Chestnut street intersection of Deerfield road last Wednesday were shocked to see three enormous blood spots, each about three feet in diameter covering a space of about twelve feet on the north part of the pavement of Deerfield road. No one in the neighborhood had heard an accident and even the police had no report of the case. This is the same place where Mrs. Marie Ward Reichelt was killed by a motorist. A pedestrian has no chance at this crossing. Possibly it was a dog who lost its life there, as the road showed a mute tale of tragedy.

A surprise pot luck supper was given on Saturday evening at the Deerfield Masonic Temple in compliment to the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. George Beckman (Cecelia Frost). It was planned by the relatives and there were over one hundred guests who were all related to the pair. Following the dinner there were cards and dancing. Music was provided by the Beckman orchestra. The party was a decided success.
