MAN DROPPED FROM LIARS' GUILD WHEN FISH YARN PROVES TRUE

Suspended Artist Claims "This One Shouldn't Count" When He Produces Rare, Red-Colored Fish

CHICAGO, March 18.—"Mad" Jack Anthony, artist and vice-president of the Liars' Guild is vice-president no longer. For "Mad" Jack went just a bit too far.

This convivial tale-teller claimed he had just seen, of all things, an OCEAN-FRESH red perch! So far a darned good whopper. For ocean-fresh perch is seldom seen hereabouts, especially at this time of year.

But when he actually produced this rare, ocean-going fish "in the flesh," Jack Anthony was ejected, bounced and black-balled from the world-famed club.

But he had the perch! Where did he get it? What phenomenon could turn Nature upside-down and bring you the elusive but delicious ocean red perch... months out of season!

It appears there's a miracle afoot called Birds Eye Quick-Freezing—a patented process used for all Birds Eye Foods.

Here is how it works... When red perch were frolicking along the Atlantic at their tenderest, taciturn peak the Birds Eye people carefully scooped them up and raced them into the docks of Boston. Here the gussy fish were washed, filleted and boned, wrapped in "Cellophane", and instantly placed in the miracle Quick-Freezing machine located right at the docks!

Whizz! At that split-second a shot of Arctic cold applied with the speed of light engulfs every individual fillet. A cold so intense and so swiftly applied that the ocean-freshness is literally sealed-in! The full flavor of the perch is retained. And it stays there until you are ready to enjoy it in all its abundant ocean-freshness. No matter how long it's been since you've eaten good perch, no matter how far you live from the fishing grounds, it is possible to get Birds Eye Red Perch filets today that are fresher than the kind you can buy even at the height of the fish season!

And the price, incredibly enough, is only 29c a lb. Serves four. They're boneless—all edible meat—ready to cook. Your Birds Eye dealer has them as well as four dozen kinds of Birds Eye fruits, vegetables, seafoods, poultry and meats. You'll find your nearest Birds Eye dealer listed below.

DOLLARS THAT CIRCULATE NEAR HOME

How many people think of a great transcontinental railroad as a home-town industry?

Take The Milwaukee as an example:

It employs more than 32,000 residents of the communities it serves, and their annual wage of more than 52 million dollars is spent at home for food, clothing, fuel and other items for family use. These employees are taxpayers and many are homeowners.

The Milwaukee Road purchases each year, in the territory reached by its rails, many millions of dollars worth of materials and supplies needed to maintain and operate its property.

Last year it paid over $6,000,000 in Taxes to twelve states—for schools, roads and the maintenance of local government.

That's why we say that The Milwaukee Road is a local industry—and that it keeps in circulation near home the dollars you pay it for freight and passenger service.
