Women Protest Interference with U. S. Supreme Court

Although the rising tide of disapproval of any interference with the Supreme Court of the United States has by no means reached the flood, the protests are coming in rolling waves to the national headquarters of the Women's National committee for "Hands Off the Supreme Court" at 535 Fifth avenue, New York City. The committee reports especially heavy returns from the State of Florida, where the club women's organizations of that area secured 20,000 signed protest petitions in eleven days. California, which voted heavily for the New Deal, is also well up in the list of vigorous objectors. Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois are close competitors with upper New York State and the metropolitan area in Greater New York.

E.C.W., Chicago, Illinois: "I will do what I can to publicize your unworthy efforts." The foregoing is one of a few samples of communications received from those not in accord with "Hands Off the Supreme Court," however, are about one in every 4,000 who find themselves against the "Hands Off the Supreme Court" views and most of these are anonymous.

Miss Cathrine Curtis, national chairman, said in reference to the returns from all parts of the United States: "Never in the history of the country have women, regardless of politics, and from all stations in life, been so willing to unite in a common cause on a matter of legislation."

The foregoing expressions are selected from among the many thousands, to give a fair cross-section of the expression of the opinion received at the headquarters of the Women's National committee. The campaign is increasing in activity and in the spread of its efforts as appeals are being made to Congressmen already committed to the President's plan, as well as those who are still "on the fence."

The purpose of the Women Investors in America, Inc., is as follows:

1. To wake up American women to a realization of their tremendous financial interests and to visualize the necessity for united, concerted action to protect these investments.

2. To preserve and protect the American system of government under which they have prospered.

3. To offer women a medium through which they may have representation to voice their opinions on programs and policies affecting their rights as property holders, taxpayers and citizens.

4. To compile and disseminate educational and factual data of particular interest to women on financial and economic subjects.

5. To revitalize interest in and to preserve for future generations the basic distinction between the sovereign rights of the people and government.

Elm Place School's Club Period Is Visited Tuesday

The other day, Tuesday to be exact, I happened to be listening in on a conversation between two Elm Place school children. They were comparing the different club periods and they mentioned the real enjoyment that they were getting from this activity. I learned that the clubs were for 7th and 8th grade pupils; that here were at least 14 hobby clubs that could be joined; that if you did not care to join a club you could go to a study room; that the clubs were run mostly by the pupils and the teachers were advisors; that some of the classes ran by themselves if the teacher advisor had to be away. Being a bit curious I visited these hobby clubs and here is what I saw:

In the Airplane club the students, all members of the Junior Birdmen of America, were too busy to even notice my entry into the room. They were busy constructing small airplanes, discussing the merits of the various planes and reading about airplanes.

The Scrapbook club was really collecting pictures of babies, dogs, cats, and many other kinds of pictures were cutting and pasting them into their scrapbooks.

The Stamp club was much too interested to bother about noticing visitors. Some were admiring a special set of unused blocks of stamps; others were busy trading; others were cataloging their stamps. Incidentally there was no teacher in evidence.

An Art class was busy making toy stages out of cardboard or wire; they also were making posters for the school.

There were two tumbling classes, one of boys, and one of girls. Here I saw cartwheels, handsprings, somersaults and diving.

Bookmaking was in progress in another club.

Another activity of interest was the Art Sketching club. Here each youngster was busy with some project of his or her own. They were making things for their own use.

I couldn't find the Camera club, and learned later that this group were outside taking pictures and actually learning by doing. Next week they will come inside and develop the pictures in their darkroom.

The Etiquette club spend their time learning how to do things right and they want to learn.

The Newspaper club looked at me rather askance for here was I sort of stealing their stuff. Incidentally most of their group were out visiting the various rooms for materials to report on; and they promise to amplify what I have to say here next week.

Last but not least we visited the Study club where all who wished could go and spend the period catching up on their studies, or just a readin'.

My impressions—just couldn't see any discipline cases, they were all too busy; children were doing something they wanted to do; hobbies could be started that might last through a lifetime; teachers showing interest and helping children in their hobbies, what could be better; and lastly let's have more of these clubs.

Mr. "X."

C. Warner Williams Awarded Prize for Sculpture in Evanston

C. Warner Williams was awarded first prize in sculpture for his "Japanese Girl" which was exhibited at the Evanston Woman's club in the annual North Shore exhibit. The prize was awarded at a banquet Wednesday evening of last week.

This is one of the largest shows annually held in the suburban area. More than 200 painters and sculptors are represented in a total of nearly 350 pieces of art, which provide a cross section of the current accomplishments of artists throughout the Tenth Congressional District.

"The Great O'Malley" to Be Shown at Deerpath Theatre

"Mind Your Own Business" another gay Charlie Ruggles comedy will be played Saturday, March 27 at the Deerpath theatre. Ruggles is editor of a birds-and-bees column. His wife, played by Alice Brady, thinks he's capable of bigger things. She writes the column for him and things start off at a merry pace. Ruggles becomes the most famous reporter in town. He accidentally finds the solution to a shooting and gangland goes into action. It's all worked out in light-hearted vein in one of the funniest comedies of the year.

The mixture of comedy and drama which W. S. Van Dyke unflinchingly injects into a mystery picture is evident again in his latest effort, "After the Thin Man," which opens Sunday, March 28 for a three day run at the Deerpath theatre with William Powell and Myrna Loy in the starring roles.

Sequel to that memorable masterpiece of cinema mystery, "The Thin Man" this was written by the same author, Dashiell Hammett.

Pat O'Brien has the title role in "The Great O'Malley," a melodrama of life in New York's colorful East Side which opens at the Deerpath theatre March 31 for a three day run. "The Great O'Malley" will be feature No. 1 of a Two-Feature program.

Laughs from the land of cotton, songs with Southern charm and Harlem pep and romance under the moonlight and magnolias highlight Jane Withers' hilarious and tuneful new triumph, "Can This Be Dixie?" which will be feature No. 2, starting Wednesday, March 31 at the Deerpath theatre. The cast includes Slim Summerville, Helen Wood, Thomas Beck, Sara Haden, Donald Cook, Claude Gillingwater.

P.-T.A. Announces Alex Templeton in Benefit Program

The Parent-Teacher association of the Elm Place School take great pleasure in presenting the talented young Englishman, Alex Templeton, in an evening of music on Friday, May 14.

The recital is being given as a benefit for the Parent-Teacher association and tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. David Sanders, H. P. 3138. Mrs. Robert Yoe Williams is president of the Parent-Teacher association and she and her committee are sparing no efforts to make the evening a memorable one.
