

Old Photograph Showing New York State "Virtually Hostess" Of World's Fair of 1893

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (Special).—Photograph, taken from Commission reports of the past century, shows the building erected by the State of New York for the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. The palatial structure, only one "properly arranged" for social functions, say the records, "constituted New York virtually the hostess of the Exposition."

The Empire State Legislature appropriated a total of $610,000 toward participation in the '93 World's Fair; and $100,000, toward participation in the Century of Progress. The eastern state erected an exhibit in the Exposition-built Hall of States at the latter fair. New York's offer of the building pictured was accepted by Mrs. Potter Palmer for use in a civic enterprise—and later refused on account of lack of funds for removal from the site.

The histories and records of American expositions are of particular interest today, when New York, for the first time since the Crystal Palace Exposition of 1853, is host to a genuinely international fair. The New York World's Fair of 1939, commemorating Washington's first inauguration as President, will cost $125,000,000 or more, according to estimates.

social worker. The Boy Scouts of America for more than a quarter of a century have been a part of American Life, one of the accepted institutions in the community. The new Handbook for Scoutmasters is worthy of the reputation that they have built up.

Music Club Chorus Ends Year's Program

The last meeting of the Highland Park Music Club for the season of 1936-1937 takes place on Wednesday, May 26, at 2:30, at the home of Mrs. Lambert, 2400 North Deere Park Drive. The program will consist of ensemble numbers by the Club Chorus, Mrs. Sincere directing, soprano solos by Mrs. Cohen with violin obligato by Mrs. Spachner. Formerly a member of the Woman's Symphony of Chicago, as well as a newcomer to Highland Park, Mrs. Spachner brings a splendid record of many fine performances on the violin. The Trial Board, Mrs. Ralph Bard, chairman, has arranged to hear a number of prospective members after the regular business meeting and musical program.

Mrs. Dyer and the hospitality committee will assist the hostess at the tea and social hour which will conclude the year's activities.

Benefit Card Party

Mrs. Florence Yager, 626 Glenview avenue, is sponsoring a benefit card party at her home on Friday night, May 21. Bridge, five hundred, pinocle and bunco will be played, and refreshments served. Mrs. Yager is oracle of the Highland Park Royal Neighbor camp. As this benefit is for a worthy cause, it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

290 Women Attend Y. W. Cooking School

Two hundred and ninety Highland Park women attended the Cooking School sponsored by the Mothers' Club of the Y.W.C.A. On Monday night the lucky winner of the modern range, which had demonstrated its ability to produce four evenly browned angel food cakes in its own oven without shifting them and to cook vegetables and meats the proper way, proved to be Mrs. Elmer Hecketaweiler. The rhythmic and original Kitchen Band also delighted the Thursday night audience with special numbers led by Mrs. S. D. Shanafelt in chef's costume.

At all the sessions the demonstrated foods were given away so Highland Park dinner tables were improved by all kinds of special dishes including whipped cream cakes, meats and vegetables, and salads. Mrs. Agnes Taylor and Miss Leah Faulconer of the North Shore Gas Company made many friends through their willingness to answer personal cooking problems as well as their practical and appetizing demonstrations.

Handbook For Scoutmasters

The new book developed by the Boy Scouts of America for the use of its volunteer leaders who are dealing with boys is extremely useful to everyone who teaches a boy, who has a boy, or who even knows a boy. Someone has said that if he were cast on a desert island the Boy Scout Handbook would be the book he would most certainly choose to take with him. Those who live in communities, urban or rural, might prefer this Handbook for Scoutmasters because it takes up all sorts of aspects of human relations. It is very much more readable than most books of this type, being written in informal, attractive style. The illustrations are a job and an inspiration having been made by the well-known artist, Remington Schuyler. Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, was closely related to the project from its beginning and has contributed many suggestions and actively participated in the development of the book. The manuscript was written by William Hillcourt of the Editorial Service of the Boy Scouts of America.

Besides technical information for Scout Leaders on various phases of Scoutcraft and Scout Leadership, there is a fine section on the Scout Program itself. The psychology of boyhood, community relationships, a bibliography that makes the book of value to general readers, activities features which include games that can be played in the home or on the playground, the latest wrinkles in camping, menu planning, hiking and health and safety in the open—have been designed to earn for the book a place in the home bookshelf and not just in the library of the
