State Fair Will Open August 14 For Nine Day Period

Springfield, Ill.—With the opening of the 1937 Illinois State Fair scheduled for two weeks from today, General Manager E. E. Irwin said preparations are nearly complete for the nine-day exposition, which, state officials predict, will be the greatest in history.

Irwin said every building and concession space has been reserved—more than two weeks in advance—for the first time in the fair's history.

A varied program has been crammed into the nine-day period, Aug. 13-22, he said, with vaudeville or other attractions in the grandstand every afternoon and evening except Veteran's Day.

One of the featured highlights of the exposition is the WLS national bandstand show broadcast from the grandstand on the opening night.

Another outstanding attraction will be the Grand Circuit trotting races with Greyhound, American trotting champion owned by E. J. Baker, St. Charles, among the entries.

Parents Hail New Safety Device

If you are a typical parent, the chances are that you have said, "Drive carefully, son," many, many times. With the introduction of a new speed regulating device it isn't necessary to say anything but "I've locked the car at 45 and you can't go any faster." Then you go to bed early and sleep well.

The new controlling device, called the Zone-o-Trol, which has already attracted the attention of Federal highway officials, is simple but positive in operation. There is a dashboard switch with three maximum speeds—30, 45 and 60 miles an hour. There is also a switch position which gives the driver the full speed of the vehicle, just as delivered from the manufacturer. When the switch is turned to the desired top speed, the car just will not go any faster. As the attachment, which is distributed from Minneapolis, Minnesota, does not work on the governor principle, there is no loss in pickup or power. The car acts just as though it could go 80—until it reaches 30, 45 or 60.

into production, though the first handmade models were tested only about 18 months ago after several years of search and experimentation. In the future when your spouse wakes you up at 2 a.m. and says, "Where in the world can that kid be? It's getting sort of late," you can just turn over and go back to sleep, because you know that wherever he is, he's only driving 45 miles per hour.

Industrial heads who operate large fleets of trucks and salesman's cars have found this locking feature a big improvement over the governors they once use. A substantial quantity of units are being rushed

Three of Deerfield's filling stations have changed hands recently. George Morey has purchased the Standard Oil station from Elmer Hoffman; Frank Jacobs is in the Pure Oil station which Raymond Meyer sold; and the Hohlfelders from Northbrook will be proprietors of the Cities Service station, formerly owned by Miss Loretta Heman. All these changes took place within one block on Waukegan road.

Mrs. Fred Trute of Chicago is spending the week with her parents, the Albert Roggows.

Rev. Robert W. Hartness of Deerfield, Ill., C.C.C. chaplain at Sparta, Wis., attended the sixth annual Pastor's institute which was sponsored jointly by the Divinity school of the University of Chicago, the Chicago Theological seminary, and the Disciples Divinity House. All parts of the United States, and Canada and Hawaii, were represented in the registration of approximately 300 ministers at the institute at the University of Chicago.

world's one-mile trotting record on the Goshen, N. Y., half-mile track. He is to meet Muscelstone, Italian champion, in two match races later this year.

Contestants in the fair will compete for awards totaling more than $160,000.

The aggregate value of premiums offered by the fair management and association will be $159,155 with an additional $3,336 for the dog show.

Besides these cash prizes, Gov. Henry Horner, who said the fair "is universally recognized as the greatest agricultural exposition held in America," is donating 30 silver trophies which he will award to various competitors.

The state conservation department has begun preparations for its annual exhibit in the Fish and Game Building. Game wardens and other local field representatives throughout the state are searching for native specimens of fish, game, birds and snakes.

Conservation Director Charles F. Thompson, who is in charge of the exhibit, named State Forester A. J. Tomesek to handle the active management. Representative of the Illinois State Natural History Survey are arranging the snake collections. The conservation department also will have a model of Governor Horner's 80-acre tree nursery at Havana on display in its building.

The Horner nursery raises millions of trees annually for distribution to farmers for reforestation of idle land. This exhibit will occupy a booth next to the soil erosion display.

General Manager Irwin said the fair would come at the height of the "fair season," but he pointed out that only four of 63 state and associated fairs in the country this year are scheduled on dates overlapping the Illinois exposition.

As a result, Irwin believes, the fair will draw the foremost livestock men in the country to produce the greatest possible competition.

Irwin said display and concession operators have been seeking space since early in June. Reservations are exhausted first in the grandstand, museum, food show and machinery field, he said.

More than 400,000 square feet of space has been reserved in the machinery field.

In the cooking display exhibitors will compete for $1,753 in prizes besides other trophies and cash awards donated by food companies and manufacturers. Gov. Horner will award a silver loving cup to the Grand Champion, winner of the greatest number of points.

The four-day dog exhibition will open Aug. 19, with two days of "hound drag" races in which dogs will run a mile and a quarter around the grandstand track lured by the scent of foxes driven before them in a truck. The American Kennel club show will be presented the following two days.

Building Work Is on Decline Here

Exhibiting the third consecutive monthly drop, the Highland Park building total for July of $86,940 not only showed a decrease from the preceding month but a terrific toboggan from July 1936.

The skyrocketing cost of building was blamed for the big dip last month when only eight permits for new dwellings were issued. The construction total in June amounted to $179,282, while in July a year ago the figure was $265,257.

But while June's building figures revealed a new low for 1937, totals for the first seven months of this year show permits were issued for $1,277,439 compared with $923,196 for the similar period in 1936.
