

DEERFIELD LOCALS

Deerfield Civic Group Studies School

At the monthly meeting of the Deerfield Civic association held last Tuesday evening in the music room of the Deerfield school, the topic for discussion was "The Deerfield Grammar School." Burton B. McRoy, president, had invited members of the school board and others interested in school affairs, to tell the members the various functions, merits, etc., of the local institution of learning.

C. W. Boyle, president of the board of directors, read his report of financial rating, which was published recently in the Press. Raymond Meyer, another director, explained how representation of all village organizations at each meeting of the board could be substituted in place of the board of education, which many residents are working for. The Civic association is earnestly discussing the merits of a seven-place the present three-member board of directors.

Edward R. Seese, president of the Deerfield-Shields high school board of education, gave a very interesting talk, and very frankly stated that the Deerfield school was far from perfect, and explained that more cooperation and interest in the school were necessary. He also told how the Deerfield Students were taking their places in scholastic and athletic ranks. He was unable to give out the information as to how the Deerfield school rated among all grade schools of the district, who send children to the high school. This information, he explained, might be embarrassing to any school district, and that information was known only to the principals of the various schools, and the high school authorities.

Mrs. R. E. Pettis, assistant to Supervisor James O'Connor of West Deerfield township, told how the school nurse, school crossing guard and office assistants were obtained through the township office, I. E. R. C., W. P. A., and N. Y. A.

The village board of trustees and Mayor C. M. Willman also were invited, but because of another meeting, left before the discussion of the crossing guard was brought up.

The members of the Deerfield Civic association are a group of community-conscious men, who by weighing the problems of the various public organizations, wish to help by offering constructive criticism and praise, where praise is due. They meet the last Tuesday evening in each month and two Thursday noons during each month.
