OF WHAT IS A COMMUNITY HOUSE COMPRISED?

Residents of Highland Park have for some time been talking and thinking about a Community Center. They have been discussing this probable community activity and venture with the view of finding out what is best for Highland Park.

Several months ago a committee of Highland Park Community Service made a study of many community houses, so as to learn what activities and what facilities are found in use today. The list below gives you a composite picture of a modern community center of today.

A combined gymnasium, assembly hall and community dance hall. This room probably is the most used of any in a center. Here we find basketball, volleyball, badminton, softball, health classes, public meetings, lectures, dances, community singing, and many other activities.

Several "utility courts." These courts are fitted so that the following activities can be interchangeably engaged in: squash, handball, boxing, wrestling, badminton, volleyball, and games like table tennis and shuffleboard.

A room, or several rooms for Boy Scout and Girl Scout activities. These rooms are also used for other boy or girl clubs the community may have.

Room, or rooms for clubs as: chess, camera, stamp, archery, etc., a handicraft room so fitted that craft activities as pottery, metal work, aeroplane model building, weaving, or simple woodwork could be engaged in.

A stage to provide for amateur dramatics. Club rooms for civic groups. A kitchenette in connection with these rooms. Here civic and social groups may gather for their educational and recreational activities.

A number of bowling alleys. Here leagues as well as open bowling can be engaged in.

Billiard room. A combined billiard and pool room was found in certain of the centers studied.

A combination dining; small ballroom, and game room. It is usually connected with a kitchen. Here banquets, parties, business clubs and many other groups could gather.

Facilities for civic orchestra, glee clubs, band, and other civic art and hobby clubs.

In addition to the above was found space devoted to offices, locker rooms, wash rooms, lobbies, lounges for men and women.

As you read over the above list do you find it complete, or, can you add to the list? Highland Park Community Service welcomes your help and suggestions.

Throughout the 90 years of its history, The Milwaukee Road has cooperated in many ways with the residents of the communities it serves.

- By improving rail service at the lowest practicable rates . . .
  - By aiding in the development of these communities and of the agricultural sections between them . . .
  - By advertising the resources and attractions of the regions it serves . . .
  - By furnishing employment to residents of each community along its lines . . .
  - By sharing, through large tax payments, the cost of maintaining schools, highways and local government . . .
  - By aiding distressed sections in time of drought.
- That is what we do. But the teamwork lies in our efforts plus your response—your patronage of the railroad when traveling or shipping in recognition of its service.
- Pulling together is good business for us and for you. Only through your continued support are we enabled to keep local men employed . . . to make extensive purchases from merchants and manufacturers in your territory . . . to pay our heavy tax bill, and to continue the improvement of rail service.
